"TORSO BAG" IS SEEN AS KIDNAP-SLAYING CLUE

THE NAME "FRANK," printed with heavy crayon, was found on the paper bag containing the torso of brutally slain Suzanne Degnan which, as the picture shows, had been tossed into a Chicago sewer after the 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Degnan was kidnapped from her bedroom and then dismembered.

Man Identified as Janitor on Drinking Spree Is Being Sought

CHICAGO, Jan. 9 (AP)—The search for the kidnaper-killer of 6-year-old Suzanne Degnan was described tonight by Detective Sgt. Jack Hanrahan as "getting hotter and hotter" with a solution possible "within twenty-four hours."

A man identified by Hanrahan only as a janitor on a drinking spree was being sought for questioning the detective said. "I am satisfied now that there were two men in the job," he added.

The hint that a possible major break in the kidnap-dismemberment case might come soon was given by Hanrahan in a criminal court habeas corpus hearing at which the judge ordered two North side building janitors freed within twenty-four hours, or charged with an offense. They are being held for questioning and for so-called lie detector tests.

"The case is getting hotter and hotter all the time," Hanrahan told Chief Justice Harold G. Ward. "We are looking for another man."

"In twenty-four hours we will know the answer one way or another."

Janitors Ask Release
The detective expressed the opinion later to newsmen that the pretty-golden-haired Degnan child was handed out her bedroom window by a kidnaper to an accomplice.

The man sought is a resident of a neighborhood flat and has been reported drinking heavily, the detective said. He reported that a search of the flat produced no clues.

"All of our men are looking for him," Hanrahan said, and "developments depend on our apprehending him."

The court issued its "charge-or-else" ruling after counsel for the janitors, Hector Verburgh, 65, and Desere Smet, 35, and Verburgh's wife, Mary, 64, asked their immediate release.

9-Year-Old Girl Is Kidnaped, Raped

ELGIN, Ill., Jan. 9 (AP)—A 9-year-old girl was abducted and raped today while on her way to school with two younger sisters and a 17-year-old farm youth of nearby Barrington was charged with kidnapping.

Police Chief Joseph Huber said the girl noted the youth's automobile license number when she was released from his car about a mile from her home and that she subsequently identified James Zenk as her abductor. The chief said Dr. Andrew J. Nowakowski reported a medical examination showed the girl had been raped.

Zenk, arrested at his home after the license number report, was charged with kidnapping in a warrant signed by Lt. Robert Koch, and was questioned further by city authorities.

Huber said Zenk denied the attack but said he had been in Elgin this morning to buy paint and other materials.

Huber said the girl told the following story: She was en route to school with her sisters, aged 6 and 5, when a youth offered them a ride. Instead of taking them to school he drove down the "old shoe factory road" about three miles east of Elgin, where he said he had a flat tire.

The three girls got out and the youth forced the oldest back into the car. The sisters walked to a farm house a half mile away and Mrs. Fred W. Zoellick called police.

Strike Threatens Early Shutdown Of Phone System

Walkout of Installation Workers Spreads to 42 States

(By The Associated Press)
A walkout of installation workers that began yesterday (Wednesday) had spread today to forty-two states and the strike threatened to shut down the nation's telephone system.

The new walkout brought the total idle because of strikes to 407,000.

Most of the 8,000 members of the independent Association of Communication Workers were away from their jobs in the wage dispute. The workers install Western Electric Company equipment for the Bell Telephone System.

Union spokesmen predicted a "100 per cent breakdown of toll service" and disruption of dial telephone service within a few days. The union has announced its intention of picketing telephone exchanges in the forty-two states where it operates, and said it had been assured that other telephone workers would not cross picket lines.

Meanwhile, the steel fact-finding board in Washington announced that collective bargaining in the steel wage dispute would be resumed today between the United States Steel Corporation and the CIO United Steel Workers Union.

Board To Stand By
Nathan P. Peinsinger, chairman of the panel, said the fact-finding board would do nothing more than stand by at the moment. He said he didn't know if resumption of negotiations would avert the pending steel strike.

Earlier, it was reported the government might authorize an increase of about $4 a ton in the price of steel. The steel companies, with the strike of 800,000 steel workers set for Monday, had requested a $7 a ton increase as a condition of resuming collective bargaining.

In New York city, strike-bound Western Union delivered messages by telephone and through the mails. No disorders were reported yesterday, the second day of the walkout of 7,000 employees in protest against a War Labor Board decision which cut a wage award granted by a regional board. Approximately 1,000 pickets marched and sang in the rain outside the company's main office.

CHUNGKING, Jan. 9 (AP)—Chinese truce negotiations bogged down again tonight.

Unexpected government demands that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's armies be permitted to occupy certain strategic towns in Communist-controlled Inner Mongolia were blamed by Communist Gen. Chou En Lai for failure to agree on a "cease fire" order in the nation's civil strife.

"These demands are unacceptable," he said.

Gen. Chang Chun, government representative, commented, "Prospects are not bad, but the problems are difficult."

Gen. George C. Marshall, President Truman's envoy to Chungking who sat in on the conference, said no unforeseen difficulties had arisen and he was still hopeful.

The three generals will meet again tomorrow afternoon, seven hours after thirty-eight delegates of China's various political factions met in a political consultation conference called by Chiang to settle differences between the government and Communists.

Gathered there will be representatives of all parties, and nine non-partisan delegates approved by common choice for their integrity and impartiality. Their principal tasks will be to try to reconcile the differences between the two main parties, the Kuomintang and the Communists, and to settle other grave problems confronting the nation.

As the fourth truce meeting ended without announced progress, a national government army was reported moving on Yei Pai Hou, a railroad junction on the fringe of the Inner Mongolian province of Jehol.

The Inner Mongolian Press Correspondent Olen Clements said aerial reconnaissance indicated the troops were concentrating as if for battle but fighting was considered unlikely because of the bitter cold.

"Despite all attempts to outlaw it, war is still a law of nature which may be channelled but not eliminated," this portion said. "It serves the survival of the race and state, x x x. This high moral purpose gives us its total character and its ethical justification."

Assistant United States Prosecutor Walter Budno, opening the American case against Nazi philosopher Alfred Rosenberg, introduced in evidence portions of a report by Rosenberg on the activities of his foreign policy section of the Nazi party.

In the report Rosenberg boasted that his campaign of spreading Nazi ideology throughout the world was so successful that his agents even had contacts with the British royal family, and that an American publisher identified as "Hearst" had "begged" him to write articles.

Kaiser-Frazer Contract With UAW Is Signed

DETROIT, Jan. 9 (AP)—The Kaiser-Frazer Corporation contract with the CIO United Automobile Workers Union, containing provisions unprecedented in the motor car industry's labor relations, was signed today by the heads of the newly-formed corporation and union officials.

In a brief ceremony in the twenty-fifth floor suite of a downtown hotel, Henry J. Kaiser, corporation chairman, and Joseph W. Brazier, president, signed for the company.

Signing for the union were William McAulay, regional director and member of the UAW-CIO executive board, and William Stevenson, director of the union's competitive shops department.

United States Steel and Union To Resume Talks

Announcement Raises Hope for Averting Major Economic Tie-Up

(By WILLIAM NEEDHAM)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—Hope for averting one of the most sweeping economic tie-ups in the nation's history rose suddenly today with the announcement that United States Steel and the CIO steel workers would resume collective bargaining.

With the General Motors strike still in progress, a nationwide telephone shutdown threatened by Friday, and steel, electrical and meat packing walkouts scheduled next week, officials obviously were hopeful of a quick steel settlement which may point the way to peace in other industries. Steel is historically an economic bellwether.

Speculation Rises
The announcement by President Truman's steel fact-finding board that collective bargaining would be resumed tomorrow led immediately to speculation in industry circles that an understanding had been reached which might provide a basis for a steel settlement.

On high but anonymous authority it was reported the government would permit an increase of approximately $4 a ton in steel prices and that most officials believed all or much of it could be absorbed by fabricators instead of being passed on to the public in the form of higher prices on automobiles and other steel products.

United States Steel has been asking a $7 a ton price increase, and had taken the position that it could not resume wage negotiations on the CIO's demands for a $2 a day wage increase until it got a price ruling.

Officials who are on the "inside" but who requested anonymity told reporters that Reconversion Director John W. Snyder and Stabilization Administrator John C. Collet favored an increase of $4 a ton over strong protests by Price Administrator Chester Bowles. Bowles is reported to have told President Truman that $2.50 should be the maximum.

Matter of Policy
A Labor department spokesman told newsmen that, as a matter of policy, the department could not agree with the principle of using price relief to settle the steel wage dispute. He said the industry had requested price relief before the CIO (Continued on Page 10, Col. 3)

MacArthur Will Have Broad Power At Tokyo Trials

(By GRAHAM HOVEY)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—An Allied war crimes setup strikingly different from that in Germany is being shaped in Tokyo and may include former Premier Tojo and other major Japanese war makers within a month, it was learned today.

The biggest difference between the two trial organizations lies in the extensive power given in the Japanese setup to Gen. MacArthur as Allied supreme commander.

This power was conferred in a directive to MacArthur from the United States joint chiefs of staff which never has been made public.

Informed persons, who cannot be further identified, say that under the directive, MacArthur has at least "paper" authority to:

1. Appoint prosecutors and judges for each of the twelve Allied nations participating in the trial of the United States, Great Britain, Russia, China, France, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Australia and Canada.

2. Review the court's final decisions with the authority to mitigate or not increase the sentences.

At Nuremberg the four-nation court set up after consultation with the Allied Control Council in Berlin, operates independently. Its decisions, however, may be reviewed by the council.

Informed persons say that actual selection of the various judges and prosecutors in Japan will be made by the participating governments.

For example, President Truman undoubtedly will approve the choice of a United States judge for Tokyo.

Technically, however, the nine governments submit a "panel" to MacArthur from which the supreme commander makes the appointments.

Informed sources here say that MacArthur on several occasions has sent telegrams to Washington urging that the Tokyo war crimes organization be an all-American affair.

The supreme commander took this stand, it was reported, not because he wished to exclude the other Allies, but because he wanted to get the trials started and finished at the earliest possible date.

4945 Labor Disputes Caused 4,600 Stoppages

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—Labor-management disputes in 1945 caused 4,600 work stoppages involving 3,325,000 workers, the Labor department reported today.

The 35,000 man-days of idleness, resulting from the stoppages, exceeded any comparable figure since 1919, the department said.

Prior to V-J day, the survey showed labor's no-strike pledge and urgency of war production brought comparatively quick settlements and work resumption, aided by machinery of the National War Labor Board.

U. S. Delegation To UNO Accepts Byrnes's Views

(By JOHN A. PARRIS)

LONDON, Jan. 9 (AP)—The United States delegation to the United Nations Assembly closed ranks in harmonious accord today after a two-hour conference with Secretary of State Byrnes, who made it clear that any plan dealing with atomic energy secrets must receive congressional approval.

Pearls were eliminated that the American delegation might enter in disagreement the first session of the Assembly, which opens tomorrow at 11 a. m. (EST).

Byrnes said his views on safeguards were entirely acceptable to all American delegates. Minutes later Sen. Arthur Vandenberg (R-Mich)—critic of Byrnes's atomic energy policy up to this point—issued a statement saying he now was "completely reassured."

Vandenberg had sought assurances from Byrnes on two points: that adequate security arrangements must precede disclosures concerning atomic matters and that "any plan recommended by the atomic commission must receive congressional approval in the United States."

In assuring the American delegation, Byrnes recalled the Moscow Big Three foreign ministers conference, where he said it was agreed that the United States would retain the atomic energy secrets until suitable UNO machinery was set up for its control.

Russia, the only one of the five larger powers not to send its foreign minister to the Assembly meeting, probably will not even be represented at the opening session by its chief delegate, Vice Commissar of Foreign Affairs Andrei Vishinsky.

A Russian delegation spokesman said Andrei Gromyko, Soviet ambassador to Washington, would head the delegation.

The spokesman had no comment on varying reports in the London press about the Soviet attitude on atomic bomb questions—that Russia would deny it was preparing to (Continued on Page 10, Col. 4)

Harbor Probers Get Roosevelt Note to Willkie

(By JOHN A. PARRIS)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—President Roosevelt wrote Wendell Willkie two days before Pearl Harbor that there might be an "armed clash at any moment with Japan."

The congressional investigating committee learned today.

Counsel distributed to committee members copies of the letter obtained from the late president's files. It is expected to be introduced in evidence after the committee resumes hearings next Tuesday. Adm. Husband E. Kimmel, Pacific fleet commander when the Japanese attacked December 7, 1941, is to be the first witness.

With the Roosevelt letter the members were sent a memorandum which Sumner Welles, then assistant secretary of state, sent to the president. This advised that Sir Keith Murdoch, Australian newspaper publisher, had suggested that Australia would welcome a visit from Willkie.

The 1940 Republican presidential candidate, a strong supporter of the president's foreign policy, had made a "good will" trip to London.

Another document turned over to the committee was an addition to a transcript of testimony given by Lt. Gen. Walter C. Short, army commander at previous Harbor inquiries. The transcript previously had been made public.

The new addition disclosed that he told the Roberts commission on January 8, 1942, that he doubted the army and navy in Hawaii would have been operating under a war alert even if they had had ample reconnaissance planes and radar equipment.

Kimmel told a navy board of inquiry that he lacked sufficient planes to conduct regular long-range reconnaissance.

Short had six mobile radar stations but permanent installations, approved for Hawaii, had not been set up. His mobile stations were operated on Sundays only three (Continued on Page 10, Col. 4)

Jet-Powered, Carrier-Based Navy Plane Can Top 500 Miles an Hour

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—The navy tonight announced development of its first exclusively jet-powered fighter plane for carrier operation. Its top speed exceeds 500 miles an hour.

Designated the FD-1 "Phantom," the plane was designed and built by the McDonnell Aircraft Corporation, St. Louis, Mo.

Despite its high speed, the "Phantom" has a landing gear comparable to conventional carrier-based fighters, making "wave-offs" feasible.

The plane, already extensively flight-tested, has a service ceiling of "well over seven miles," the navy said.

Primarily designed as an interceptor, it has an extremely high rate of climb and a range of approximately 1,000 miles.

Power is furnished by twin axial-flow Westinghouse turbo-jet engines built into the wing roots. The engines, which are of exclusive American design, contain no long screws or ducts. For conditions where takeoff assistance is needed, either standard carrier catapults or jets (jet-assisted take-off) units may be used.

The "Phantom" is built of light aluminum alloy polished to a finish which presents little air resistance. A Plexiglas cockpit canopy, set ahead of the engines, resembles an "elongated bubble." All rivet heads are set flush, and the tricycle landing gear is completely enclosed when retracted.

Total weight of the plane with full combat load is less than 10,000 pounds.

The single-seat, low-wing monoplane has a wing span of approximately forty feet. The wings fold electrically, and when rigged for storage the plane is only sixteen feet wide. Rocket devices and auxiliary belly fuel tanks may be dropped in flight.

Eisenhower Directive Dis- regards Discharge Scores; Demonstrating Gls Won't Be Punished

(By The Associated Press)
Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower yesterday authorized overseas commanders to send home all men they do not need, regardless of their point scores.

"Reports indicate that in some theaters there are men who might otherwise be returned to the United States for discharge except for War Department restrictions on scores," the chief of staff's message said.

He added that a new program "will be forthcoming shortly" but that meanwhile the theater commanders are authorized "to return to the United States without delay any men for whom there is no military need."

The directive specified that priority be given to men with the highest scores and the longest service.

Acting Secretary of War Kenneth C. Royall, who announced Eisenhower's order, said in a statement that the department "is reviewing the entire demobilization situation."

Royall said in Washington that "the detailed future program of the War Department will be forthcoming shortly."

"Near Mutiny" Is Broken Up
From Germany to Japan and at points between, GIs chafed at the slowing of discharges and a provost marshal in Yokohama broke up what he called a "near mutiny."

The War department indicated, however, that demonstrating, protesting troops would not be punished unless there were violence or disorder.

The nearest thing to that, apparently, was at headquarters of United States forces in the European Theater at Frankfurt, Germany. More than 4,000 soldiers and WACs assembled there to chant "We want to go home."

Angry shouts arose but soon subsided when a military policeman pushed a demonstrator. Military police arrested one of two soldiers who came to blows.

The whooping crowd called in vain for the appearance of Gen. Joseph T. McNarney.

After loudly blaming "politicians at home" for keeping them overseas, the throng marched on McNarney's headquarters. With rifles, tear gas and sub-machine guns kept a watchful eye on the marchers.

Investigation Is Asked
In Washington, Sen. S. Revercomb (R-W.Va.) and Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.) called for an "A" to "Z" congressional investigation of demobilization. A third senator, Chairman Elbert D. Thomas (D-Utah), of the Military committee, said he saw no need for an inquiry.

President Truman has said that demobilization is moving along as fast as possible and that the army had to slow it down because of a critical need for occupation forces overseas.

When acting commander of the Eighth army in Japan, Lt. Gen. Charles P. Hall, warned his troops in a message that subversive elements quickly would sense dissension among occupation forces and "take their cue for sabotage plans from our future actions."

The Manila area, scene of protest meetings since Tuesday, was relatively quiet. The command general in the Philippines, Lt. Gen. William D. Styer, informed Gen. Eisenhower in Washington there was no need of disciplinary action because there had been "no act of violence or disorder."

Eisenhower, army chief of staff, approved that decision and so reported to President Truman. Eisenhower said in his report, released by the White House, that Gen. Douglas MacArthur agreed with (Continued on Page 10, Col. 4)

Southern Flood Damage Mounts

(By The Associated Press)

Violent floods continued to rage throughout the South yesterday, leaving thousands temporarily homeless and causing tremendous property damage.

Twenty-two deaths attributed to the high water were counted in Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas and Georgia. Tennessee and Kentucky rivers, swollen by torrential rains, began receding in the upper regions but the upper Ohio was rising and more water was expected later in the week.

In Tennessee, where eight persons died in the murky waters, the Tennessee river crested at Chattanooga at 25.82 feet, nearly six feet above flood stage.

The Cumberland river began falling at Harlan and Pineville, Ky., and citizens began digging mud out of lowland homes. The Big Sandy and Kentucky rivers also began receding.

The death list in Kentucky remained at six. Arkansas counted six deaths and Georgia two. Alabama and Mississippi rivers were rising, with some of the streams expected to go above the danger mark.

An estimated 5,000 persons were driven from homes in Kentucky. At Harlan, forty-two coal mines remained closed because of power failure.

Secret Document Discloses Nazis' Rules of Warfare

By JAMES F. KING

NUERNBERG, Germany, Jan. 9 (AP)—The Nazi high command in 1938 decided that a "declaration of war" was no longer necessarily the first step in the start of a war, top secret Nazi documents introduced before the international military tribunal disclosed today.

Further, the German high command said, "The normal rules of war toward neutral nations may be considered to apply only on the basis of whether the operation of these rules will create greater advantages or disadvantages for the warring nations."

This military credo, issued April 19, 1938, was introduced by the British prosecutors as they opened individual cases against Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, former chief of the high command, and Col. Gen. Alfred Jodl, German army chief of staff. The document was so secret that only three copies were prepared.

Another portion of the credo which was not read into the court record gave further insight into the Nazi military's conception of its work.

"Despite all attempts to outlaw it, war is still a fact of nature which may be channelled but not eliminated," this portion said. "It serves the survival of the race and state. x x x This high moral purpose gives war its total character and its ethical justification."

Assistant United States Prosecutor Walter Brudno, opening the American case against Nazi philosopher Alfred Rosenberg, introduced in evidence portions of a report by Rosenberg on the activities of his foreign policy section of the Nazi party.

Chungking, Reds Order Cessation Of Hostilities

CHUNGKING, Thursday, Jan. 10 (AP)—Representatives of the Chungking government and the Chinese Communists today ordered an immediate cessation of hostilities on the part of their armed forces.

CHUNGKING, Jan. 9 (AP)—Chinese peace negotiations bogged down again tonight.

Unexpected government demands that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's armies be permitted to occupy certain strategic towns in Communist-controlled Inner Mongolia were blamed by Communist Gen. Chou En Lai for failure to agree on a "cease fire" order in the nation's civil strife.

"These demands are unacceptable," he said.

Gen. Chang Chun, government representative, commented, "Prospects are not bad, but the problems are difficult."

Gen. George C. Marshall, President Truman's envoy to Chungking who sat in on the conference, said no unforeseen difficulties had arisen and he was still hopeful.

The three generals will meet again tomorrow afternoon, seven hours after thirty-eight delegates of China's various political factions meet in a political consultation conference called by Chiang to settle differences between the government and Communists.

Gathered there will be representatives of all parties, and nine non-partisan delegates approved by common choice for their integrity and impartiality. Their principal task will be to try to reconcile the differences between the two main parties, the Kuomintang and the Communists, and to settle other grave problems confronting the nation.

As the fourth truce meeting ended without announced progress, a national government army was reported moving on Yei Pai Hou, a railroad junction on the fringe of the Inner Mongolian province of Jehol. Associated Press Correspondent Olen Clements said aerial reconnaissance indicated the troops were concentrating as if for battle but fighting was considered unlikely because of the bitter cold.

Agree to Conference

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—The British and French have agreed to confer with United States officials here this month on steps to uncover Nazi assets hidden in neutral European countries, American diplomatic officials disclosed today.

Assistant United States Prosecutor Walter Brudno, opening the American case against Nazi philosopher Alfred Rosenberg, introduced in evidence portions of a report by Rosenberg on the activities of his foreign policy section of the Nazi party.

In his report Rosenberg boasted that his campaign of spreading Nazi ideology throughout the world was successful, that his agents even had contacts with the British royal family, and that an American publisher identified as "Hearst" had "begged" him to write articles.

Kaiser-Frazer Contract With UAW Is Signed

DETROIT, Jan. 9 (AP)—The Kaiser-Frazer Corporation contract with the CIO United Automobile Workers Union, containing provisions unprecedented in the motor car industry's labor relations, was signed today by the heads of the newly-formed corporation and union officials.

In a brief ceremony in the twenty-fifth floor suite of a downtown hotel, Henry J. Kaiser, corporation chairman, and Joseph W. Frazer, president, signed for the company.

Signing for the union were William McAnis, regional director and member of the UAW-CIO executive board, and William Stevenson, secretary of the union's competitive shops department.

U. S. Delegation To UNO Accepts Byrnes' Views

By JOHN A. PARRIS

LONDON, Jan. 9 (AP)—The United States delegation to the United Nations Assembly closed ranks in harmonious accord today after a two-hour conference with Secretary of State Byrnes, who made it clear that any plan dealing with atomic energy secrets must receive congressional approval.

Fears were eliminated that the American delegation might enter in disagreement the first session of the Assembly, which opens tomorrow at 11 a. m. (EST).

Byrnes said his views on safeguards were entirely acceptable to all American delegates. Minutes later Sen. Arthur Vandenberg (R-Mich.)—critic of Byrnes' atomic energy policy up to this point—issued a statement saying he now was "completely reassured."

Vandenberg had sought assurances from Byrnes on two points: that adequate security arrangements must precede disclosure of atomic matters and that "any plan recommended by the atomic commission must receive congressional approval in the United States."

In assuring the American delegation, Byrnes recalled the Moscow Big Three foreign ministers conference, where he said it was agreed that the United States would retain the atomic energy secrets until suitable UNO machinery was set up for its control.

Russia, the only one of the five larger powers not to send its foreign minister to the Assembly meeting, probably will not even be represented at the opening session by its chief delegate, Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs Andrei Vishinsky.

A Russian delegation spokesman said Andrei Gromyko, Soviet ambassador to Washington, would head the delegation.

The spokesman had no comment on varying reports in the London press about the Soviet attitude on atomic bomb questions—that Russia would deny it was preparing to (Continued on Page 10, Col. 4)

Harbor Probers Get Roosevelt Note to Willkie

By JOHN A. PARRIS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—President Roosevelt wrote Wendell Willkie two days before Pearl Harbor that there might be an "armed clash at any moment with Japan," the congressional investigating committee learned today.

Counsel distributed to committee members copies of the letter obtained from the late president's files. It is expected to be introduced in evidence after the committee resumes hearings next Tuesday. Adm. Husband E. Kimmel, Pacific fleet commander when the Japanese attacked December 7, 1941, is to be the first witness.

With the Roosevelt letter the members were given a memorandum which Sumner Welles, then assistant secretary of state, sent to the president. This advised that Sir Keith Murdoch, Australian newspaper publisher, had suggested that Australia would welcome a visit from Willkie.

The 1940 Republican presidential candidate, a strong supporter of the president's foreign policy, had made a "good will" trip to London.

Another document turned over to the committee was an addition to a transcript of testimony given by Lt. Gen. Walter C. Short, army commander at previous Harbor inquiries. The transcript previously had been made public.

The new addition disclosed that he told the Roberts commission on January 8, 1942, that he doubted the army and navy in Hawaii would have been operating under a war alert even if they had had ample reconnaissance planes and radar equipment.

Kimmel told a navy board of inquiry that he lacked sufficient planes to conduct regular long-range reconnaissance.

Short had six mobile radar stations but permanent installations approved for Hawaii, had not been set up. His mobile stations were operated on Sundays only three (Continued on Page 10, Col. 4)

Eisenhower Directive Disregards Discharge Scores; Demonstrating GIs Won't Be Punished

[By The Associated Press] Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower yesterday authorized overseas commanders to send home all men they do not need, regardless of their point scores.

"Reports indicate that in some theaters there are men who might otherwise be returned to the United States for discharge except for War department restrictions on score," the chief of staff's message said.

He added that a new program "will be forthcoming shortly" but that meanwhile the theater commanders are authorized "to return to the United States without delay any men for whom there is no military need."

The directive specified that priority be given to men with the highest scores and the longest service.

Acting Secretary of War Kenneth C. Royall, who announced Eisenhower's order, said in a statement that the department "is reviewing the entire demobilization situation."

Royall said in Washington that "the detailed future program of the War department will be forthcoming shortly."

"Near Mutiny" Is Broken Up

From Germany to Japan and at points between, GIs chafed at the slowing of discharges and a provost marshal in Yokohama broke up what he called a "near mutiny."

The War department indicated, however, that demonstrating, protesting troops would not be punished unless there were violence or disorder.

The nearest thing to that, apparently, was at headquarters of United States forces in the European theater at Frankfurt, Germany. More than 4,000 soldiers and WACs assembled there to chant "We want to go home."

Angry shouts arose but soon subsided when a military policeman pushed a demonstrator. Military police arrested one of two soldiers who came to blows.

The whooping crowd called in vain for the appearance of Gen. Joseph T. McNarney.

After loudly blaming "politicians at home" for keeping them overseas, the troops marched on McNarney's headquarters. They sang, threw tear gas and sub-machine guns kept a watchful eye on the marchers.

Investigation Is Asked

In Washington, Edwin S. Reevercomb (R-WVa) and Sen. C. Johnson (D-Colo.) called for an "A" to "Z" congressional investigation of demobilization. A third senator, Chairman Elbert D. Thomas (D-Utah) of the Military committee, said he saw no need for an inquiry.

President Truman has said that demobilization is moving along as fast as possible and that the army had to slow it down because of a critical need for occupation forces overseas.

The acting commander of the Eighth Army in Japan, Lt. Gen. Charles P. Hall, warned his troops in a message that subversive elements quickly would sense dissonance among occupation forces and "take their cue for sabotage plans from our future actions."

The Manila area, scene of protest meetings Monday and Tuesday, was relatively quiet. The command general in the Philippines, Lt. Gen. William D. Styer, informed Gen. Eisenhower in Washington there was no need of disciplinary action because there had been "no acts of violence or disorder."

Eisenhower, army chief of staff, approved that decision and so reported to President Truman. Eisenhower said in his report, released by the White House, that Gen. Douglas MacArthur agreed with (Continued on Page 10, Col. 4)

Southern Flood Damage Mounts

[By The Associated Press]

Violent floods continued to rage throughout the South yesterday, leaving thousands temporarily homeless and causing tremendous property damage.

Twenty-two deaths attributed to the high water were counted in Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas and Georgia. Tennessee and Kentucky rivers, swelled by torrential rains, began receding in the upper regions but the upper Ohio was rising and more water was expected later in the week.

In Tennessee, where eight persons died in the murky waters, the Tennessee river crested at Chattanooga at 25.82 feet, nearly six feet above flood stage.

The Cumberland river began falling at Harlan and Pineville, Ky., and citizens began digging mud out of inland homes. The Big Sandy and Kentucky rivers also began receding.

The death list in Kentucky remained at six. Arkansas counted six deaths and Georgia two. Alabama and Mississippi rivers were rising, with some of the streams expected to go above the danger mark.

An estimated 5,000 persons were driven from homes in Kentucky. At Harlan, forty-two coal mines remained closed because of power failure.

Jet-Powered, Carrier-Based Navy Plane Can Top 500 Miles an Hour

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—The navy tonight announced development of its first exclusively jet-powered fighter plane for carrier operation. Its top speed exceeds 500 miles an hour.

Designated the FD-1 "Phantom," the plane was designed and built by the McDonnell Aircraft Corporation, St. Louis, Mo.

Despite its high speed, the "Phantom" has a landing gear comparable to conventional carrier-based fighters, making "wave-offs" feasible. The plane, already extensively flight-tested, has a service ceiling of "well over seven miles," the navy said.

Primarily designed as an interceptor, it has an extremely high rate of climb and a range of approximately 1,000 miles. "This plane," the navy announced, "constitutes a significant milestone in the history of naval aviation as it opens the field of carrier operation to the all-jet interceptor."

Self-Conscious Person Receives Helpful Hints

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:
I would appreciate it very much if you could give me a helpful hint on how to overcome self-consciousness. I am so self-conscious that I dread meeting people. It seems my mind goes blank when it is up to me to make conversation. I have tried helping myself by reading a great deal and forcing myself to be in the company of friends. I have joined clubs also. With all that, I cannot feel relaxed.

I. P.
Self-consciousness is no doubt one of the most torturing ailments from which a person can suffer. But people — thousands of them. I P. — do get over it. Perhaps you are intensifying the problem by concentrating too hard on yourself and your feelings in trying to figure out a solution. Don't forget that the term "self-conscious" — "conscious of self" — gives away the secret of the trouble. Instead of worrying about how you appear to other people, think about them. When you're talking with them, find out what interests them and let them talk about that. Chances are you'll get interested yourself in what they have to tell and will forget yourself — the first essential in conquering self-consciousness. Many a good listener wins popularity by that quality.

"Doesn't Know She Exists"

My dear Miss Fairfax:
I have worked myself into a state of nerves over a boy for the past eight years. I have known this boy all my life, for he is my third cousin, but we are quite distant and do not see each other often. I have liked him immensely for all these years, but he doesn't even know I exist.

exist. Please don't say to forget him, as that is impossible. This may sound like a schoolgirl crush, but it is entirely different.

I am not being vain, but I am attractive enough to have boys take me out every Saturday night. This boy has no girl, and when we are together he acts very nice. But that is as far as it goes. I can't forget him and would like to know what to do. Shall I wait and give him time? If not, how can I attract him and let him know that I'm alive?

The only pleasure I get in going out with different fellows is to try to imagine them as being him. When I think of him, however, I dislike every one of these boys, although they are extremely nice to me and would do anything in the world for me. If you could advise me to do anything except forget him, I would be very grateful to you.

B.H.S.
Of course I'm not going to advise you to forget this boy with whom you are so infatuated. In the first place, you're determined not to, so any such advice would be wasted. And in the second place, it is undoubtedly true that at present, having concentrated all your thoughts and attention on him for so long, you are unable to forget him.

But there are things you can and should do while you are hoping and waiting for him to "find out that you're alive." One of them is to stop imagining when you are out with any other boy, that he is the one of your dreams. This is truly foolish. Instead of indulging your self in such futile daydreams, put your mind on having a good time when you go out with others. It is hardly fair to accept invitations from other boys and then spend your evening thinking about someone else. Try to give your escort a good time, even if you think you're not having one yourself. First thing you know, you may be astonished to find you're having one, too.

There are just two things you can do about the boy friend. Since you're a relative of his, even though a distant one, you can write him a friendly, chatty letter once in a while, and whenever opportunity brings you together you can be just as companionable as possible. If he doesn't become aware of you in time through such a program, I'm afraid you'll probably have to reconcile yourself to the fact that it's unlikely he will.

In the meantime, having good times with other boys won't prevent his noticing you, if he's ever going to. In fact, it might very well make him more likely to. And if he doesn't, however much you may not want to forget him now, you'll probably discover another equally attractive young man among your other friends.

Maryland Politics Begins To Warm Up

ANNOUNCEMENT by Governor O'Connor that he will be a candidate for the United States senatorial nomination in this year's primary election provides considerable encouragement for Republicans of Maryland for the simple reason that the governor's decision is tacit admission of a likelihood that he could not make the gubernatorial grade even by gaining the nomination.

Deep down in the political waters can be discerned the reason for that fear. It is that this year there can be no presidential coattail riding because there are no such coattails. Those in the last dozen years have, it is true, provided a more stable career in presidential election years; nevertheless, the election remained considerable conveyance possibilities in the off-years. But now the record of failure accrued by the Truman administration appears to have swept away any such advantage.

At any rate, it appears that the Democratic powers that be in Maryland have realized such a situation, wherefore there is to be seen why a Democratic slate is this early in shaping up. It being thus obvious that the Maryland Democratic campaign this year must be waged by candidates on their own, the devil take the hindmost, they must be up and dusting in order to do so.

While the governor's announcement has brought forth the declaration from Rep. Lansdale G. Sasser, who has long nurtured gubernatorial aspirations, that he will not be a candidate for the office this time, and an accord between them is thus established, there will be a big scrap over the senatorship between O'Connor and Senator Radcliffe, who is up for renomination. Another scrap is plainly scheduled over the attorney generalship since there are all indications that the state Democratic machine will support state Senator James J. Lindsay, of Baltimore county, against Lawrence B. Pennington, of Baltimore, who numbered himself among the early birds by announcing his candidacy for the primary nomination before O'Connor had quieted the speculations of the various tentative candidates.

W. Preston Lane, Jr., of Hagerstown will not be without opposition for the Democratic nomination for governor as some had expected. Stephen B. Patterson, of Baltimore, having filed, but Lane was one of the early birds and a state machine accord on the position has been indicated.

Republicans have been a bit slow about bringing out candidates, but have probably been due to a not unusual desire to see how the Democratic rats would hop. Paul Robertson, Baltimore Republican city chairman, has announced his candidacy for the senatorial nomination, but there will likely be another contest or two, one having already entered in the person of C. Walter Riddiough, of Howard county farmer, who has filed at Annapolis, and possibly Mayor McKeldin, of Baltimore, thus adding some zest and spirit to this race on the Republican side.

Robertson has an early bird advantage. This may not amount to a great deal considering the usual delay in his announcement, he shrewdly avoided any reference to party factionalism, in which he has engaged to some extent in the past but in which he met a party membership pressure of such magnitude in the last campaign as to swing him into enthusiastic support of the regular candidates, for which he deserves due credit. This time he declares his purpose of running as a Republican on Republican ideals and of looking strictly to national affairs and needs.

Here in Allegany county, things politically have been moving along at a somewhat leisurely pace with indications, however, that the situation will be perhaps less apathetic than in the last county election year. The entrance of George Henderson as a candidate will bring interest to the judicial nomination. It is obvious that a bit of doctoring will be essayed in the case of a county commissionership which has for some time been a sore spot loudly calling for remedial measures. Otherwise we shall just have to wait to see what shall be.

All in all, the political picture thus shaping up gives prospects of becoming quite interesting as this campaign year waxes along with chances that before the bars come down at the primary starting post it will revolve into kaleidoscopic pattern.

Wire (Don't Write) The Western Union

IT IS the stated policy of the Truman administration to order no wage increases that will force inflationary price increases. The president also has said that within this formula, business is entitled to make a reasonable profit. That the president thought it necessary to say this is significant.

But sometimes there is a wide gap between policy and performance. At least so it must seem to the harassed executives of the Western Union Telegraph Company, who have been ordered by the government to increase wages twenty-one per cent—a figure that, when added to increases previously granted, amounts to a total rise of forty-five per cent in average wages of their employees since January 1, 1941. The company's plight is described by Joseph L. Egan, president of the company, in these words:

"The wage increases awarded by the National War Labor Board for Western Union employees add some $25,000,000 to the company's annual pay roll. In addition, the board awarded the employees approximately $21,000,000 in back pay, which is about equivalent to the company's aggregate net income before federal taxes for 1944 and 1945.

"The increase in the annual pay roll is approximately twice the company's net income before federal income taxes in 1944, and twenty-five per cent greater than its estimated net income before such taxes in 1945, the best year in the company's history. Thus the board directs this company to pay out more money than it takes in under existing rates and circumstances."

Where is the money to come from? That's a nice question, and if any one knows an economic magician who has the answer, we (don't write) Western Union.

Furthermore, Mr. Egan says: "This company and the unions have previously agreed to abide by the board's decision. We therefore have no alternative but to put the directives of the National War Labor Board into effect."

And that may explain, in part, why management is reluctant to put business in the hands of federal fact-finding committees or to bind itself in advance to accept the decisions of government boards.

What Is Your Big Idea?

A SLANG PHRASE is often an epigram. Peering beneath its apparently meaningless grouping of words, one discovers an expression of clearness, conciseness and age-old truth. There is the question of the writer, the merchant, the college president—each has found or shall find his place in life in the nature of the idea that dominates it.

Man is cowardly or heroic, worthless or useful, wretched or happy by this one test—What is the big idea?

Army officials say Lindbergh didn't shoot down a Jap plane as claimed. Eventually it may be contended the man first to soar across the Atlantic didn't even know how to fly.

If President Truman's annual message to Congress is no more effective than his last attempt over the air, why does he bother?

A giraffe can see behind without turning its head. Many persons can read school teachers who could do the same thing.

The brave new world is presumed to have arrived. Closed factories surrounded by pickets seems to be the greatest change.

The wisest of thinkers present nothing new—only a different interpretation. An interpretation for the time. The fundamentals do not change.

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND Army Places Premium on Inefficiency, Pearson Says; GI Resentment Hits Peak

By DREW PEARSON
WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Judging by the flood of telegrams deluging this columnist—many of them from Europe and the Pacific—three events last week raised GI resentment to the highest boiling point yet. They were:

1. The War department's official slowdown of demobilization.
2. Secretary of War Patterson's red-faced admission in Guam that he didn't know the very elementary fact that overseas veterans stopped accumulating points on V-J day.

3. Announcement by Gen. Joseph McNarney, new European commander, that low-point men might now come home quicker than high-point men whose services were more essential. This, of course, paves the way for the return of senators' sons, football players, and anyone with political pull—provided they make themselves sufficiently non-essential.

GIs were quick to see the significance of this. In addition to resentment to make themselves just as menial, there was immediate determination to make themselves as non-essential as possible. In other words, the army now puts a premium on inefficiency. The man who does a good job has to stay on. The man who does a poor job and is non-essential can come home.

Secretary Patterson's fumble regarding the point system convinced a lot of people that Patterson was letting the brass hats run the show and didn't know what they were doing. Once before he aroused GI resentment when he ordered the discharge of Georgia football star Charles Trippi at the request of two Georgia senators—despite the fact that Trippi was a low-point type, and tylists are classified as essential.

Truman Didn't Know Either
President Truman added to the conviction that his administration is blindly letting the brass hats run things when he attended a Saturday night party thrown by Gen. Hap Arnold at the Bolling Field Officers' club. Officers who had planned dates several days in advance arrived with girlfriends only to find the club barred. Without advance notice, Gen. Arnold had taken over both floors and every room—allegedly as security to protect the life of the president.

Those who know Harry Truman's habit of mingling with folks say that he never would have consented to having the entire club taken over on his account. If he had known about it, and that the brass hats must have put one over on him, Note—Army claims that its fast LIQUIDATOR

German Task Is Viewed as Curb On Demobilization

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Long before the war ended there were two schools of thought about how Germany should be treated. One advocated that the German people be given the severest possible punishment, on the theory that the whole nation was responsible. The other advocated that the German nation be stripped of its war potential and that the guilty war criminals be executed but that the people as a whole should be rehabilitated.

One of the principal arguments against the so-called "hard peace" was that democratic nations would not raise the armies or incur the burdens of a long-time occupation. Those who clamored for decades of occupying were never able to say who was going to enlist in the army to do the work of policing Germany.

Today the American parents and relatives of the soldiers want their boys home. The demonstrations against delay in demobilization have been conspicuous. President Truman had to issue a statement explaining the enormous nature of the task and the need for keeping troops at the outlying posts where the terms of the surrender have to be executed.

Japanese Friendship Seen

Whether or not the people of Japan will eventually become our friends is related to the manner in which General MacArthur carries out the occupation task. Certainly the indications at present are that the Japanese and American peoples will become friends rather than enemies. If this develops, it will be because the United States has not arranged to occupy Japan indefinitely.

In Germany, however, the situation is different. It begins to look as if Germany will be occupied for decades to come. It is doubtful whether British or Russian troops will be withdrawn from German soil for a long time. Is America prepared for an indefinite occupation? To accomplish it a large army will be needed, and as yet the War department has not been able to develop a plan that would bring in the necessary forces as replacements for existing requirements.

To Much Merger Politics

Too much time and attention has been given by the War department to the politics of the proposed merger of the army, navy and air forces and not enough time to the simple task of raising an army by means other than the draft.

At present the Selective Service law is still in operation. Congress has not terminated the statute nor has there been any crystallization of opinion behind any substitute. The problem of universal training has been agitated even though no army adequate to replace the troops overseas has been provided. Under the War department's military training bill, service overseas was not to be required anyhow.

So it all comes down to the single fact that the Allies are still in a state of war and yet the United States is under pressure to demobilize its forces at once. Congress has been putting pressure on the military establishment. But neither the president nor any member of his cabinet has pointed out that American occupation forces are to stay in Europe for several years and what forces will be used.

Taken Force Dubious

There are, of course, those in the government who feel the United States can leave a token force abroad. The British would be uneasy about this and so would those Americans who feel the United States should stay in Europe and enforce discipline upon the German people.

President Truman has urged that all men overseas be brought back and yet it is obvious that the voluntary enlistment plan has not brought in enough men to replace the overseas veterans.

Private, Republican leaders admit that the radio speech probably increased Truman's popularity.

and relatives as well as the veterans themselves. The desire to get back home and forget about Europe is as intense today as it was in 1919 so far as the troops are concerned. Here is a major problem in international relations. A course that seeks to rebuild the German people and to bring them into the family of nations will bring peace to Central Europe more quickly than floundering methods and an indefinite occupation.

Fear of Inflation Supplants Wrong One on Deflation

By MARK SULLIVAN

The course about wages, which the Truman administration has followed since the end of the war, has not been without a reason, or a theory. The course was inspired by a fear. What that fear was may be stated thus:

With V-J day would come the end of demand for war materials. Industries making such materials would reduce their activity, drastically. For some months they would be engaged only in reconverting their plants to make peacetime goods. During this period, many workers would be laid off, and those that remained would work fewer hours per week; overtime work at time-and-a-half wages would largely cease.

Depression Possible

The result would be a serious drop in the amount of wages received by most workers. In the aggregate it would be a very large drop in the total wages of all labor. Such a drop in total wages is a drop in the country's purchasing power. It would be a drop in the total capacity of the country to buy goods. It might lead to a semi-paralysis of business, a depression, deflation.

This expected drop in purchasing power, and its expected consequences, was the administration's fear. To offset it was the purpose of the administration's course.

To offset a drop in the country's purchasing power, an obvious course would be to raise wage rates. The administration itself did not directly raise wage rates. Officially it dismantled the government's wartime agency for controlling wage rates, and left wages to collective bargaining between employers and unions. What the administration did was to give encouragement to demands for wage raises by the unions.

The course the unions took paralleled the course of the administration, and was expressed in terms of the same purpose—to increase purchasing power. The union leaders demanded that a worker receive in peacetime the same amount of wages he had received in wartime, even though the number of hours worked might be fewer. As expressed in a common slogan, the demand was, "Fifty-two hours' pay for forty hours' work." This meant that the wage rate per hour would be much increased.

Not a Political Reason

No doubt politicians in the Truman administration may have favored encouragement of wage raises for a political reason. But the real reason for the administration policy was the fear here described.

The fear, reasonable enough in anticipation, turned out in fact to be unfounded. While there was a drop in total wages following V-J day, it did not affect the purchasing power of the country as the administration had feared. There was no semi-paralysis of business, no depression, no deflation. On the contrary, the purchasing power of the country, as expressed in department store sales was some ten per cent to twelve per cent greater during the month following V-J day than it had been during the corresponding months of the preceding year.

What the administration failed to take into account was the enormous mass of purchasing power that had accumulated during the war. In terms of money in circulation, it had increased from some seven billion dollars in 1939 to over twenty billion by V-J day. Checking accounts in banks had increased from less than twenty-nine billion in 1939, to over sixty-nine billion.

Power Already Greater

Actually, the administration had been striving to increase purchasing power at a time when purchasing power as measured by money in circulation and bank deposits was enormously greater than it had ever been before.

To the enormous quantity of purchasing power already existing, will now be added still more. It will come in the form of wage raises which labor seems likely to get by the current strikes. This immense aggregate of purchasing power, seeking goods to buy and finding few of them, tends to pay extravagant prices for what goods there are. And this condition—abundant money but limited goods—brings the administration a new fear. This one is real. The concern over inflation which President Truman showed in his radio broadcast last week was well justified.

The hope of the administration, and of the country, must be that quantity of goods be increased, quickly and greatly, that industry get under way with full production. This accounts for the administration's anxiety to get strikes ended.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

Well, I wrote out a long list of New Year's resolutions. A lot of people laughed and said I couldn't keep 'em, but just to prove they were wrong, I locked them in a safe-deposit box. Here are some of my resolutions:

(1)—Never to turn my back on one of Crosby's putts, or my face to one of his tips.
(2)—I resolve not to go calling on Hedy Lamarr anymore and she resolved to dig up those land mines around her front door.
(3)—Never to fight again! With Paramount. Those drugstore sandwiches are cut too thin.

(4)—To always love my children, even when they leave a roller skate on the third stair from the top.
(5)—To make my radio show much funnier this year. Of course, I'm not sure I'll be able to sign LaGuardia.

Maryland Politics Begins To Warm Up

ANNOUNCEMENT by Governor O'Connor that he will be a candidate for the United States senatorial nomination in this year's primary election provides considerable encouragement for Republicans of Maryland for the simple reason that the governor's decision is tacit admission of a likelihood that he would not make the gubernatorial grade even by gaining the nomination.

Deep down in the political waters can be discerned the reason for that fear. It is that this year there can be no presidential coattail riding because there are no such coattails. Those in the last dozen years have, it is true, provided a more stable carriage in presidential election years; nevertheless there remained considerable conveyance possibilities in the off-years. But now the record of failure accrued by the Truman administration appears to have swept away any such advantage.

At any rate, it appears that the Democratic powers that be in Maryland have realized such a situation, wherefore there is to be seen why a Democratic slate is this early in shaping up. It being thus obvious that the Maryland Democratic campaign this year must be waged by candidates on their own, the devil take the hindmost, they must be up and dusting in order to do so.

While the governor's announcement has brought forth the declaration from Rep. Landale G. Bassett, who has long nurtured gubernatorial aspirations, that he will not be a candidate for the office this time, and an accord between them is thus established, there will be a big scrap over the senatorship between O'Connor and Senator Radcliffe, who is up for re-election. Another scrap is plainly scheduled over the attorney generalship since there are all indications that the state Democratic machine will support state Senator James J. Lindsay, of Baltimore county, against Lawrence B. Pennington, of Baltimore, who is himself among the early birds by announcing his candidacy for the primary nomination before O'Connor had quieted the speculations of the various tentative candidates.

W. Preston Lane, Jr., of Hagerstown will not be without opposition for the Democratic nomination, but he is not alone. One having expected, Stephen B. Peddicord, of Baltimore, having filed, but Lane was one of the early birds and a state machine accord on the position has been indicated.

Republicans have been a bit slow about bringing out candidates, but this has probably been due to a not unimportant desire to see how the Democratic cats would howl. Paul Robertson, Baltimore Republican city chairman, has announced his candidacy for the senatorial nomination, but there will likely be further contesting of two, one having already entered in the person of G. Walter Riddleberger, Baltimore county farmer, who has filed at Annapolis, and possibly Mayor McKelvin, of Baltimore, thus adding some zest and spirit to this race on the Republican side.

Best story on the distinguished British visitor now arriving in the USA concerns Churchill's ex-son-in-law, Vic Oliver, the famous stage comedian. Oliver is now divorced from Churchill's daughter, but shortly before the divorce he called at No. 10 Downing street to see if he couldn't help patch up his matrimonial affairs. At dinner with his father-in-law and various other notables, Oliver popped a question, calculated, he thought, to warm the soul of the then British prime minister.

"Sir," he said, leaning across the table and looking sweetly at his father-in-law, "who, in your opinion, will emerge as the greatest leader of this war?"

But before anyone at the table could come back with the expected answer that Winston Churchill himself was the greatest war leader, his glowering father-in-law shot back: "Mussolini!"

"Mussolini?" countered the puzzled Mr. Oliver. "Why do you say Mussolini?" "Because," replied Churchill, "at least had the good sense to shoot his son-in-law."

One advocated that the German people be given the severest possible punishment, on the theory that the whole nation was responsible. The other advocated that the German nation be stripped of its war potential, but that the ordinary war criminals be executed but that the people as a whole should be rehabilitated.

One of the principal arguments against the so-called "hard peace" was that democratic nations would not raise the armies or incur the burdens of a long-time occupation. Those who clamored for decades of occupying were never able to say who was going to enlist in the army to do the work of policing Germany.

Today the American parents and relatives of the soldiers want their boys home. The demonstrations against delay in demobilization have been conspicuous. President Truman had to issue a statement explaining the enormous nature of the task and the need for keeping troops at the outlying posts where the terms of the surrender have to be executed.

Japanese Friendship Seen

Whether or not the people of Japan will eventually become our friends is related in the manner in which General MacArthur carries out the occupation task. Certainly the indications at present are that the Japanese and American peoples will become friends rather than merely former enemies. If this develops, it will be because the United States has managed to occupy Japan indefinitely.

In Germany, however, the situation is different. It begins to look as if Germany will be occupied for decades to come. It is doubtful whether British or Russian troops will be withdrawn from Germany for a long time. Is America prepared for an indefinite occupation? To accomplish it a large army will be needed, and as yet the War department has not been able to develop a plan that would bring in the necessary forces as replacements for existing requirements.

To Much Merger Politics

Too much time and attention has been given by the War department to the politics of the proposed merger of the army, navy and air forces and not enough time to the simple task of raising an army by means other than the draft.

At present the Selective Service law is still in operation. Congress has not terminated this statute nor has there been any crystallization of opinion behind any substitute. The problem of universal training has been agitated even though no army adequate to replace the troops overseas has been provided. Under the War department's military training bill, service overseas was not to be required anyway.

So it all comes down to the single fact that the Allies are still in a state of war and yet the United States is under pressure to demobilize its forces at once. Congress has been putting pressure on the military establishment. But neither the president nor any member of his cabinet has pointed out that American occupation forces are to stay in Europe for several years and what forces will be used.

Taken Force Dubious

There are, of course, those in the government who feel the United States can leave a token force abroad. The British would be uneasy about this and so would those Americans who feel the United States should stay in Europe and enforce discipline upon the German people.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

Well, I wrote out a long list of New Year's resolutions. A lot of people laughed and said I couldn't keep 'em, but, just to prove they were wrong, I locked them in a safe-deposit box. Here are some of my resolutions:

- (1)—Never to turn my back on one of Crosby's puts, or my face to one of his tips.
- (2)—I resolve not to go calling on Hedy Lamarr anymore and she resolved to dig up those land mines around her front door.
- (3)—Never to fight again with Paramount. Those drugstore sandwiches are cut too thinly.
- (4)—To always love my children, even when they leave a roller skate on the third stair from the top.
- (5)—To make my radio show much funnier this year... of course, I'm not sure I'll be able to sign LaGuardia.

From less than twenty-nine billion in 1939, to over sixty-nine billion. Power Already Greater

Actually, the administration had been striving to increase purchasing power at a time when purchasing power as measured by money in circulation and bank deposits was enormously greater than it had ever been before.

To the enormous quantity of purchasing power already existing, will now be added still more. It will come in the form of wage raises which labor seems likely to get by the current strikes. This immense aggregate of purchasing power, seeking goods to buy and finding few of them, tends to pay extravagant prices for what goods there are.

And this condition—abundant money but limited goods—brings the administration a new fear. This one is real. The concern over inflation which President Truman showed in his radio broadcast last week was well justified.

The hope of the administration, and of the country, must be that quantity of goods be increased, quickly and greatly, that industry get under way with full production. This accounts for the administration's anxiety to get strikes ended.

THE TOUGHEST TIME OF LIFE
We were talking about modern youth. There were the usual wheezes and gripes about Young America's recklessness, about its hardness, its indifference to warnings and exhortations. There were the usual doleful prophecies that the race is going to the dogs. But somehow none of it got under my skin.

I've been kicking around with American youth for a long time now—mothering it, playing and working with it, writing for it—and loving and believing in it more every day I have lived. Yet in that love there was a strain of pity.

FOR I HAVE COME TO SEE WITH INCREASING CLEARNESS THAT YOUTH IS NOT HARD NOR RECKLESS NOR DEFIANT AND REBELLIOUS.

For twenty years we have used the phrase "flaming youth." But the simple truth is that there is more fear than fire in youth and that its braggadocio is all too often a cover-up for deep bewilderment and dismay. I have met and known many thousands of young people but I have yet to meet one whose adolescence was not shadowed by nightmares of frustration and inadequacy, by terror of the future and fury with the present.

Youth is not the happiest time in life. It's not the most carefree time. It has its spells of glee and its rain-bow dreams but taken all in all it is the most haunted and hardest period of our existence. And this applies to the rich and poor, famous and obscure alike. No youngster emerges from the mists of his early years without scars which all endure to his death. And never was this so true as in this postwar year of 1946 with its chaotic peace and its shadowed future.

And I also believe that some of our most intelligent and devoted parents with their ultra theories make this adolescent period twice as hard as need be for their cherished children, and contribute very largely to juvenile delinquency by their refusal to use their own authority and their insistence on making their children find their own self-expression and build their own personalities.

A great educator once said to me, "Of course I am for self-expression at all ages in so far as it is necessary and wholesome. But I think parents do unlimited harm when they refuse to take firm stands during the youngsters' development and in frequent crises to take the power of decision out of their untrained, fumbling hands."

The truth is—however much they may splutter—growing children, even adolescents, don't resent firm authority. They expect it as they expect food and lodging and they are lost without it.

The normal growing youngster is confused at heart. He realizes and often magnifies his own weakness. He trembles before the challenges of life and its competition. He feels inadequate. He is in desperate need of some authority which he can trust and lean on. And the youthful tempests and tears and reckless acts are nearly always a cover-up for that deep confusion.

The carefully reared girl who steps out of her groove one day and makes a blind date with some questionable stranger, or allows herself to be picked up by some worthless hoodlum is—nine times out of ten—simply trying to prove to herself that she is braver and more competent than she actually feels. The boy who drinks a pint of cheap gin during a joy ride and wrecks the family car is usually trying to assert a manhood he has not yet attained.

Allegany Nurses Alumnae To Honor Twenty Members

Dates of State and District Meetings Announced by Miss Alta Earl

The Allegany Hospital Nurses Alumnae Association formulated final plans for the annual banquet and dance honoring members who were brides during the year, at the meeting last evening. The affair will be semi-formal and will be held January 22 at the Queen City hotel ball room. The banquet will be served at 7 o'clock and will be followed with the dance with music by Marty Flynn's orchestra. Miss Alta Earl presided and appointed Mrs. Helen Jones Allen and Miss Opal Bonner co-chairmen of arrangements. Miss Martha Heron reported that there have been twenty brides during the year, but the majority are residing out of town or are still in service.

Miss Earl announced that the state nurses meeting would be held in Baltimore January 29, at which time officers will be elected. She will represent the local association at the meeting. She also announced that the Allegany-Garrett District Nurses Association would meet January 30 at the city hall.

The Director of Nurses of the hospital invited members of the alumnae to attend the formal opening ceremony of the new nurses home, which is being built in back of the hospital, and which is expected to be held the latter part of this month. Other routine business was transacted.

Mrs. Fleming Gives Monthly Report

The monthly and yearly report of the Travelers Aid Society was given by Mrs. M. J. Fleming at the meeting of the society yesterday afternoon at Central YMCA, with Mrs. Nellie Wilson Footer presiding.

Her narrative report from January 1, 1945 to December 1, 1945 included 439 contacts; 301 investigations; 241 meals; 136 lodgings; fifty-eight transportation; provided; sixty-six telegrams and long distance telephone calls made; ninety-six letters written; seventy-eight visits made; clothing given to forty; medical aid to twenty-one; thirty-runaways returned home; eighteen children met and cared for between trains and buses; nine elderly persons met and taken to a friend or placed enroute to continue their journey; employment found for four.

Travelers Aid investigations made for January included: room and travel aid arranged for nineteen persons, enroute to other cities; friends or relatives located.

Recapitalization Plan of Second National Approved

Unanimous approval of the bank's plan of recapitalization, calling for the retirement of outstanding preferred shares and the issuance of new common stock, was voted by stockholders of the Second National Bank at the annual meeting Tuesday. Holders of 92.5 per cent of the bank's outstanding stock either attended or were represented at the meeting.

Two new men, G. William Bibby, this city, and Henry W. Miller, Jr., of Paw Paw, W. Va., were elected to the bank's board of directors. Other members of the board were re-elected.

Commenting on the 1945 activities of the bank, President Tasker Lowndes said: "Without any doubt, the outstanding developments were the continued substantial growth in the deposit balances of our customers and the completion of the plan to eliminate by payment in full the preferred stock which is held by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. During the year just ended, deposits increased by $3,438,056 to the record breaking total of $13,939,209. It should be emphasized that 97.81 per cent of these total deposits were represented by cash, government securities, or the equivalent. Thus through bond purchases your bank has not only helped to finance the wartime activities of the United States but, as a consequence, is now amply provided with loanable funds to meet all legitimate postwar credit needs of individuals and business concerns in the tri-state area."

"The excellent condition of your bank," continued President Lowndes, "is further evidenced by the increase in ownership funds or capital accounts which now amount to $750,129. During the year, your directors continued their policy of a conservative valuation of assets. Government securities are carried on the books at less than market or realization values. The figure at which the banking house and its furniture and fixtures are carried was reduced by approximately $50,000 to $102,500. All other real estate owned now stands on our books at the nominal figure of $6.00."

It was announced that warrants for the purchase of the 5,500 new shares of common stock would be mailed shortly to all stockholders of record as of January 9, 1946. Each present common stockholder will receive a warrant to buy one new share for each share now owned. These rights or warrants will lapse and become void after noon on February 8th next. Stockholders were accordingly urged to plan to subscribe for the new stock or to transfer their rights to someone who would subscribe within the next 30 days. Mr. Lowndes emphasized again that the bank is assured of the complete sale of the new common stock through a commitment from present stockholders. He added, however, that stockholders who failed to exercise their rights or to transfer them to a buyer would sustain a loss, unless they were certain to act within the thirty day period.

The following directors were re-elected by the stockholders: Tasker G. Lowndes, John Schwarzenbach, Pulcher P. Smith, J. Glenn Beall, Joseph M. Naughton, Harry C. Barton and Charles Z. Heskett.

Mr. Bibby, a newly elected director, is president and a member of the board of the Cumberland Brewing Company to which he recently returned from the European Theater of Operations as a Lieutenant Colonel in the Ninth Air Force, United States Army.

Mr. Miller, also chosen a director at Tuesday's meeting, is vice-president and general manager of the Consolidated Orchard Company, vice-president National Apple Institute, member executive committee International Apple Association, treasurer and board member U. S. Horticultural Council, Board member Appalachian Apple Service, member of Foreign Trade Advisory Committee on Horticulture to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, member of National Advisory Committee on Apples to the OPA and the WFA, past-president and member of the Fruit and Vegetable Committee to the National Board of the American Farm Bureau, president Morgan County Board of Education.

—The excellent condition of your bank, continued President Lowndes, "is further evidenced by the increase in ownership funds or capital accounts which now amount to $750,129. During the year, your directors continued their policy of conservative valuation of assets. Government securities are carried on the books at less than market or realization values. The figure at which the banking house and its furniture and fixtures are carried was reduced by approximately $50,000 to $102,500. All other real estate owned now stands on our books at the nominal figure of $6.00."

It was announced that warrants for the purchase of the 3,500 new shares of common stock would be mailed shortly to all stockholders of record as of January 9, 1946. Each present common stockholder will receive a warrant to buy one new share for each share now owned. These rights of warrants will lapse and become void after noon on February 8th next. Stockholders were accordingly urged to plan to subscribe for the new stock or to

Recapitalization Plan of Second National Approved

Unanimous approval of the bank's plan of recapitalization, calling for the retirement of outstanding preferred shares and the issuance of new common stock, was voted by stockholders of the Second National Bank at the annual meeting Tuesday.

Holders of 92.5 per cent of the bank's outstanding stock either attended or were represented at the meeting.

Two new men, G. William Bibby, this city, and Henry Wm Miller, Jr., of Paw Paw, W. Va., were elected to the bank's board of directors. Other members of the board were re-elected.

Commenting on the 1945 activities of the bank, President Tasker G. Lowndes said: "Without any doubt, the outstanding developments were the continued substantial growth in the deposit balances of our customers and the completion of the plan to eliminate by payment in full the preferred stock which is held by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. During the year just ended, deposits increased by $3,438,056 to the record breaking total of $13,939,099. I should be emphasized that 97.81 per cent of these total deposits were represented by cash, government securities, or the equivalent. Thus through bond purchases your bank has not only helped to finance the wartime activities of the United States but, as a consequence, is now amply provided with loanable funds to meet all legitimate postwar credit needs of individuals and business concerns in the tri-state area."

"The excellent condition of your bank," continued President Lowndes, "is further evidenced by the increase in ownership funds or capital accounts which now amount to $750,129. During the year, your directors continued their policy of conservative valuation of assets. Government securities are carried on the books at less than market or realization values. The figure at which the banking house and its furniture and fixtures are carried was reduced by approximately $50,000 to $102,500. Each present common stockholder will receive a warrant to buy one new share for each share now owned. These rights of warrants will lapse and become void after noon on February 8th next. Stockholders were accordingly urged to plan to subscribe for the new stock or to transfer their rights to someone who would subscribe within the next 30 days. Mr. Lowndes emphasized again that the bank is assured of the complete sale of the new common stock through a commitment from present stockholders. He added, however, that stockholders who failed to exercise their rights or to transfer them to a buyer would sustain a loss, unless they were certain to act within the thirty day period.

The following directors were re-elected by the stockholders: Tasker G. Lowndes, John Schwarzenbach, Fulcher P. Smith, J. Glenn Beall, Joseph M. Naughton, Harry C. Barton and Charles Z. Heskett.

Mr. Bibby, a newly elected director, is president and a member of the board of the Cumberland Brewing Company, which he recently returned from the European Theater of Operations as a Lieutenant Colonel in the Ninth Air Force, United States Army.

Mr. Miller, also chosen a director at Tuesday's meeting, is vice-president and general manager of the Consolidated Orchard Company, vice-president National Apple Institute, member executive committee International Apple Association, treasurer and board member U. S. Horticultural Council, Board member Appalachian Apple Service, member of Foreign Trade Advisory Committee on Horticulture to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, member of National Advisory Committee on Apples to the OPA and the WPA, past-president and member of executive committee West Virginia Horticultural Society, member of the Fruit and Vegetable Committee to the National Board of the American Farm Bureau, president Morgan County Board of Education.

Up to and including the first week of the New Year, the local army recruiting station had a total of 57 re-enlistments and 91 original enlistments, Captain Laurence M. Bairstow, officer in charge, reported yesterday.

Two veterans of this area, Floyd Berkey, A-5, and T-5 Lorena Harman Ridings, plus one original enlistee, Earl G. Johnson left Tuesday for Hagerstown for examination for entry into the army.

Berkey, 18, was discharged from the navy September 25, 1945, and is re-enlisting for three years in the quartermaster corps. Ridings, 25, Gorman, W. Va., is a veteran of three years and ten months prior service in the Pacific Theater of Operations. He is re-enlisting in the quartermaster corps.

Johnson, 17, is the son of Lynn E. Johnson, 229 Pava street. He has signed for two years in the infantry.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

Keyser May Construct New Building To House Volunteer Fire Company

Citizens May Be Asked To Vote on Issuing $19,500 Worth of Bonds

By LUKE McDOWELL

KEYSER, W. Va., Jan. 9.—At a meeting of the city council Tuesday an order was entered authorizing City Attorney James H. Swadley, Jr., to consult the attorney general of West Virginia, as to legal steps necessary to submit a proposition to the voters of Keyser for the purpose of issuing bonds to the amount of $19,500 for the erection of suitable quarters for the use of the Keyser Volunteer Fire Company.

The fire company over a period of years has acquired a substantial amount of modern fire-fighting equipment. At the present time that equipment and a small club room are located in a one-story makeshift frame structure on the city lot at the corner of North Mineral and Center streets, adjacent to the building of Mineral county garage. The building is entirely inadequate and is of such temporary construction as to constitute a constant fire hazard.

The proposal is to erect a fireproof structure, covering the entire city lot facing Mineral street and extending along Center street to an alley. The ground floor will be designed for the storage and care of the fire-fighting equipment, with possible room for other property owned by the city. The building contemplated is estimated to cost $38,000 to $39,000.

The proposed bond issue of $19,500 is intended to supplement an amount between $10,000 and $17,000 now in the city treasury earmarked for the specific purpose of constructing a fire company building. In addition to these amounts there are certain revenues specially set aside for the same purpose, all of which will boost the fund to the amount estimated for the project.

This move is a fine gesture of the citizens of Keyser, more than twenty per cent of whom signed a petition calling for a bond issue election. It is also an expression of appreciation of the esteem in which Keyser's voluntary fire-fighting organization is held by the general public.

Fog Which

more, was the subject of much speculation. It has been understood for some time that he would wait for O'Connor's announcement before putting himself in either the Senate or gubernatorial race.

McKeldin went to New York today to sign some city bonds, his office reported, and was not available for comment.

The only Republicans who have filed candidacies with the state of state's office are: Paul Roberts, son, chairman of the Baltimore City Republican Committee, and G. Walter Riddleberger, Baltimore county farmer. Both filed for the United States Senate.

Sassone's announcement was followed by the re-election bid of Rep. Dudley G. Roe (D-Md.), of Sudburyville, who filed for the nomination in the First congressional district.

O'Connor said his record during two terms at Annapolis had earned him the right to represent Maryland in the national field. Radcliffe countered by saying that "in these very trying times, it is my opinion that experience in national affairs carries weight. Seniority in the Senate provides a member with much wider opportunity to serve both the people of his state and the nation."

While the candidates were discussing their qualifications, the political leaders were concerned with vote-producing organizations and the geographical aspects of possible tickets.

They pointed out that eight years at Annapolis gives a candidate organization advantage stemming from his appointive privileges to posts throughout the state. This, they point out, is the situation which O'Connor finds himself Radcliffe has many years in the Senate, they say, have not given him the advantages in this respect now held by O'Connor.

On the geographical situation, an O'Connor victory, the primary would give Baltimore city representation on the ticket. Radcliffe now lives and maintains office in Baltimore but he is originally from the Eastern shore.

The lack of serious opposition now for Lane apparently assures the county's gubernatorial place on the Democratic ballot.

Penneman, a formal candidate for attorney general, is from Baltimore city, and Lindsay, who said he might run if his law business were not too pressing, is from Baltimore county.

Curran "Draft" Is Urged

BALTIMORE, Jan. 9.—Gov. O'Connor recommended today that Maryland Democrats consider drafting William Curran as a candidate to succeed himself as attorney general.

Twenty-four hours after announcing his own candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate, O'Connor said he was making the proposal without consulting Curran.

Curran later said he had a similar suggestion from William Preston Lane, Jr., Hagerstown publisher, who is a candidate for the party gubernatorial nomination.

Commenting on O'Connor's statement, the attorney general said: "That's very nice of the governor, and I appreciate it. He added, 'I'm very grateful to Preston Lane, who made a similar suggestion.'"

Two Youths Who Fled Reformatory Are Seized

Nurserymen have a similar opportunity, Symons said, that of beautifying Maryland's homes. The extension building boom will enable them to improve the looks of the countryside tremendously by offering the right types of shrubs and flowers, he said.

William Keegan Plans To Enter City Council Race

Retired Mail Carrier Is Fatally Injured When Hit by Cab

Stating that he will obtain petition from the city clerk this week, William Keegan, local restaurateur and athletic coach, announced yesterday that he plans to enter the race for city council.

It will be the first venture for Keegan for an elective office. He has resided here since 1920 and has operated Shober's restaurant, North Main street, for the past five years. Prior to that he was in the service station business on Oldtown road in the Mapleside section from 1933 to 1940.

Favors Recreation Commission
In a statement on his candidacy Keegan said he had been considering the move for several months and decided this week to enter the race. There are several things which could make it even better, Keegan stated.

"I'm in favor of setting up a city recreation commission with a director qualified to handle the program," Keegan said, "because I know that we need such a program to curb juvenile delinquency and give the means where boys and girls can have a healthful recreation in sports and games."

"Another program which the city needs is the promotion of small industries and business to give added diversity of employment for our workers," he said.

A well-defined program to help returning veterans is also on the list of matters in which Keegan says he is interested.

Active In Sports
Mentioning flood control Keegan stated that he has been through one flood at his present place of business and has gone through several near floods.

"Naturally I'm behind any flood control which will provide the necessary protection to the life, health and finances of our city," Keegan pointed out.

Keegan has been active in athletic programs in Cumberland since he first came to this city. He played on the old Knights of Columbus basketball team, sponsored independent basketball teams, namely the North End Collegians and Cumberland Collegians, and also sponsored a softball team named Keegan's Gamblers. Solution to

p. m. (CST) tomorrow, because of the seriousness of this crime.

The janitors and Mrs. Verburgh were being held by police only for questioning.

Mother Is Told of Dismemberment
Hanrahan told reporters later that the man sought was another janitor in that district who had "been on a drinking spree for several days" and could not be located.

Meanwhile Father George Kearney, the parish priest who brought the heartbreaking news to Mr. and Mrs. James Degnan that the kidnaper had killed their daughter, informed the mother today of the ghastly manner in which the girl's body was handled and disposed.

Mrs. Degnan, under the effect of a shock, while that an angel sobbed as he spoke to her, made no comment. Degnan previously had asked their parish priest to withhold temporarily details of the brutal slaying.

Hanrahan's hint of important developments capped a day marked principally by the collapse of several originally considered important.

States Attorney William J. Tuohy told reporters that a chemical analysis showed bones found in an apartment furnace just off the room where they built the victim's body was dismembered were not human.

Earlier Chief of Detectives Walter Storms said he agreed with a coroner's office report that a hack saw found in a locker in the "dissection room" could not have been used to dismember the body.

Both Storms and the coroner discredited a theory that an ax found in an apartment had figured in the dismemberment—both holding that the entire job had been done with a knife.

Discovery of a red-stained blanket and a knife in an alley behind the apartment building at 5901-3 Winthrop avenue, where authorities believe the girl was cut to pieces, raised hopes for a while that an important clue had been uncovered.

Later, however, Detective Sgt. Tim O'Connell said he had borrowed the blanket to kneel on while peering into a sewer the previous day.

Enough knives "to outfit a complete unit" have been uncovered in the investigation, he added.

The report on the bones was the sharpest setback, however, to police efforts to narrow down the field of possible suspects. The furnace door was customarily locked, they said, and there were no windows through which an intruder might climb. There are several windows of flesh, internal organs and blood were found in the trap of the washbasin drain.

The bone test was made in an effort to account for the missing arms of the victim, the only parts of her body which have not been recovered.

Eleven Get Lie-Detector Tests
Eleven persons held for questioning have been given lie-detector tests so far, police said, and seven of them released. Verburgh has not undergone a test, they said.

Verburgh, a mild-mannered man who building tenants said "wouldn't harm a fly" was seized for questioning yesterday after police said they found bits of human flesh, internal organs and blood in a laundry tub drain in the building basement. His wife was taken with him to detective headquarters.

Police, who are engaged in the city's greatest manhunt, detained Smet early today. Police Sgt. Jack Hanrahan described Smet as the "insupportable" of Verburgh, but Smet's wife denied the two were more than casual acquaintances.

Suzanne, golden-haired daughter of James Degnan, Chicago OPA executive, was snatched from her bed Monday morning by an abductor who left a $20,000 ransom note, killed her, dismembered her body and dumped the parts into sewer pipes. The coroner's office said there also were indications she had been sexually mistreated.

Verburgh denied any knowledge of the girl's abduction, asserting he was asleep in his apartment. He contended the basement windows were unlocked and said someone might have broken in to do the grisly dissecting job.

At Miami, Fla., the Daily News quoted Dr. and Mrs. Frank D. Case, owners of the apartment building at 5901-3 Winthrop avenue where Verburgh is employed, as saying that a key to the basement had been furnished to an ash disposal agency.

Verburgh, a native of Belgium, has been a Chicago janitor for seventeen years.

A brief inquest today was continued to January 30 after Police Capt. John L. Sullivan said all law enforcement agencies in the case wanted three weeks more for investigation.

In a radio appeal earlier today, Storms asked an unidentified man and woman to communicate with him "if they have no connection with the case." He said the two were observed in the vicinity of the Degnan home about the time of the kidnapping. The woman was carrying a bundle in both arms," he said and climbed into a parked automobile. A man was in the driver's seat.

Funeral services will be Friday in St. Gertrude's Catholic church. In Baltimore, the Maryland OPA said, which Degnan helped to establish, set up a remembrance fund for him and arranged for twenty-five masses for his 6-year-old daughter.

Degnan's wife and a 10-year-old daughter, Elizabeth, also survive.

CIO President Philip Murray said that if an industry counteroffer were made and it was satisfactory, he would issue orders to hold the strike scheduled for Monday "in abeyance."

On the congressional front, the Senate Labor committee was paying the way for opening of hearings Monday on President Truman's short control legislation. Officials of the General Motors Corporation and the striking CIO United Automobile Workers are scheduled as the first witnesses.

Max Spear Named To National Body Of Jewish Group

Rabbi Aaron H. Lefkowitz also Is Elected to National Council

Max Spear, 901 Braddock road, Cumberland jeweler, has been re-elected to the national council of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee.

Spear, who has served on the council for the past several years, was re-elected to it at the thirty-first annual meeting held in New York in December. Rabbi Aaron H. Lefkowitz, formerly of B'er Chayim temple, this city, and now of Temple Beth Shalom, Long Branch, N. J., also was elected to the national council.

The council is composed of men and women in communities throughout the United States and Canada who have shown an interest in the activities and problems of the joint distribution committee.

Looks to Council
The committee looks to members of the council for advice and leadership in local communities as well as assistance in meeting the needs of Jews overseas.

Members of the council receive reports and other literature from the committee to keep them abreast of the program.

First-hand reports on the immediate needs of Europe's surviving Jews were presented at the annual meeting in December by three men recently arrived from Europe.

They were Dr. Joseph J. Schwartz, chairman of the European council of the JDC; Rabbi Judah Nadich, chief Jewish chaplain in the European theater of operations and former special adviser to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower; and Edward M. N. Warburg, newly-elected chairman of the committee.

$58,300,000 Is Needed
At the meeting, the sum of $58,300,000 was estimated as necessary for the JDC to meet the needs of distressed Jews overseas. The JDC spent almost $28,000,000 in relief and rehabilitation activities all over the world in 1945.

In the United States, the JDC receives its funds from the campaign of collecting funds of the United Jewish Appeal.

Demonstrators Met Patterson
Col. Charles A. Mahoney, provost marshal of the United States Army Service Command, stopped what he termed a "peaceful demonstration" that greeted Secretary of War Patterson upon his arrival in Yokohama.

Mahoney said Patterson was met by cries of "We want to go home." He said he told the demonstrators that "insulting a man who is a soldier before you are born."

A mimeographed paper distributed among GIs quoted Mahoney as saying, "If you want leave parties, I'll get them for you."

Patterson is on an inspection tour. Servicemen at several points called for his dismissal after news from the Philippines alleged he had shown a lack of knowledge of the demobilization program in answering questions of reporters.

Half way across the Pacific, 15,000 men in khaki met at Hickam field, Honolulu, yesterday. They heard Master Sgt. Joe Naiman, Brooklyn, assail the demobilization program and demand action from Congress.

Similar indignation meetings were reported in Korea, with various groups filing messages to congressmen.

At Batangas, near Manila, soldiers planned to lay complaints before a Senate subcommittee studying demobilization and surplus problems. Sgt. Emil Mazey, Detroit, said he was ready to tell the committee that the retention of no more than a normal peacetime garrison was justified.

intermediate flowers in the flowers than Bailey's, his being somewhat on the dry side. For example, Miss Wilder wrote "the great point of the Naked Jasmine is early flowering. Anytime from February on, the naked whiplike branches may string themselves with stars."

That said the reporter and for his money, Charles L. Kopp, whether he knows it or not, has a "Naked Jasmine" right in his backyard. Miss Wilder went on to say that the "Naked Jasmine" does very well in cold gardens as any good garden soil satisfies its needs.

Expected Contradictions
Having gotten into deep research thus far, it was next decided to look into Forsythia. Forsythia, we learned, was named after one William Forsyth, who brought with him from China. It is a small genus of ornamental Asiatic shrub with yellow bell-shaped flowers which appear before the leaves in early spring. Nothing was said about soil, so we assumed it has no smell.

So there it is. Apparently it's a "Naked Jasmine" with its whiplike branches strung with stars. However, it wouldn't surprise us if we were contradicted flatly within the next twenty-four hours. There might be somebody in town who really KNOWS about that bush at the rear of the board of education.

The bus lines will offer improved design buses, with faster express service schedules and additional comfort to entice passengers from other methods of travel, Ley said.

Many changes expected with more than 3,000 good airports are now in operation in the United States, an additional 3,500 are on the drawing boards and in process of being built. Airplanes, schedules and water carriers have a greater volume of air-express. One major air line already has air-express service between fifty-three of the nation's cities.

Saying that these things are but the highlights of vast changes to come in the future of the nation's transportation agencies, Ley said that each of the various modes of travel will be developed just as fast as plans can be made to put them into effect. The transportation furnished during the war proved that the railroads, bus lines, airplanes and water carriers have a very large place in the life of the nation. Certainly, Ley concluded, we need have no fear but that the same motives will produce even greater things in the days to come.

Arrangements for the meeting were under the direction of Mary L. Johnson, John L. Carnochan and William C. Somerville.

Interment will be in St. Patrick's cemetery.

Dr. Linne H. Corson, deputy county medical examiner, said Mr. Clarke died as a result of a crushed left chest, possible fracture of the skull, fractures of both legs below the knees and a laceration of the left temple.

Police identified the driver of the Johnny's taxi as Nell Faulkner, 919 Frederick street. Faulkner posted $500 bond in trial magistrate court yesterday before Magistrate Frank A. Perdue who said the case will be submitted to the grand jury today.

Driver Is Questioned
When questioned yesterday morning by Paul M. Fletcher, assistant state's attorney, Faulkner stated his cab struck Mr. Clarke before he saw him. At the time of the crash a street light nearby was not on and it was raining and very dark, Faulkner said.

John J. Treiber, assistant chief of police, said last evening that a neighbor of Mr. Clarke called them and asserted that the light in question was burning.

Investigate Accident
Shortly after the accident, Faulkner told Officers J. Carl Stouffer and Joseph Stutcher, who investigated with Detective L. R. Emmett Flynn that he was traveling between twenty and twenty-five miles an hour when Mr. Clarke stepped off the sidewalk in front of the taxi.

Members of the family said Mr. Clarke left the Stein funeral home at 9:30 p. m. after viewing the body of his sister, Mrs. Loretta Farrin, wife of David Farrin, who died Sunday at her home in Washington, D. C.

Mr. Clarke was within 150 feet of the home when the accident occurred, members of the family said.

William Keegan Plans To Enter City Council Race

Stating that he will obtain petitions from the city clerk this week, William W. Keegan, local restaurateur and athletic coach, announced yesterday that he plans to enter the race for city council.

It will be the first venture by Keegan for an elective office. He has resided here since 1920 and has owned Shober's restaurant, North Mechanic street, for the past five years. Prior to that he was in the service station business on Oldtown road in the Mapleside section from 1933 to 1940.

Favors Recreation Commission
In a statement on his candidacy Keegan said he had been considering the move for several months and decided this week to enter the race. "Cumberland is a fine city but there are several things which could make it even better," Keegan stated.

"I'm in favor of setting up a city recreation commission with a director qualified to handle the program," Keegan said, "because I know that we need such a program to curb juvenile delinquency and provide the means where boys and girls can obtain healthful recreation in sports and games."

"Another program which the city needs is the promotion of small industries and business to give added diversity of employment for our workers," he said.

A well-defined program to help returning veterans is also on the list of matters in which Keegan says he is interested.

Active In Sports
Mentioning flood control Keegan stated that he has been through one flood at his present place of business and has gone through several near floods.

"Naturally I'm behind any flood control which will provide the necessary protection to the life, health and finances of our city," Keegan pointed out.

Keegan has been active in athletic programs in Cumberland since he first came to this city. He played on the old Knights of Columbus basketball team, sponsored independent basketball teams, namely the North End Collegians and Cumberland Collegians, and also sponsored a softball team named Keegan's Gassers. He is coach of the LaSalle High basketball team this year and coached the LaSalle team that won the Eastern States Catholic Intercollegiate basketball tournament championship at Newport, R. Solution to

p. m. (CST) tomorrow, because of "the seriousness of this crime."

The janitors and Mrs. Verburgh were being held by police only for questioning.

Mother Is Told of Dismemberment
Hanrahan told reporters later that the man sought was another janitor in that district who had "been on a drinking spree for several days and could not be located."

Meanwhile Father George Kearney, the parish priest who brought the heartbreaking news to Mr. and Mrs. James Degnan that the kidnaper had killed their daughter informed the mother today of the ghastly manner in which the girl's body was handled and disposed.

Mrs. Degnan, under the effect of sedatives since her daughter's death, sobbed as he spoke to her but made no comment. Degnan previously had asked their parish priest to withhold temporarily details of the brutal slaying.

Hanrahan's hint of important developments capped a day marked principally by the collapse of several clues originally considered important.

States Attorney William J. Tudy told reporters that chemical analysis showed bones found in an apartment furnace just off the room where they believe the victim's body was dismembered were not human.

Ax Theory Is Discredited
Earlier Chief of Detectives Walter Storms said he agreed with a coroner's office report that a hack saw found in a locker in the basement "dissection room" could not have been used to dismember the body.

Both Storms and the coroner discredited a theory that an ax found in an apartment in the same building was used in the dismemberment—both holding that the entire job had been done with a knife.

Discovery of a red-stained blanket and a knife in an alley behind the apartment building at 3901-3 Winthrop avenue, where authorities believe the girl was killed, raised hopes for while that an important clue had been uncovered. Later, however, Detective Sgt. Tim O'Connell said he had borrowed the blanket to kneel on while peering into a sewer the previous day.

Enough knives to make a commando outfit "have been uncovered in the investigation," he added.

The report on the bones was the sharpest setback, however, to police efforts to narrow down the field of possible suspects. The furnace room floor was customarily locked, they said, and there were no windows through which an intruder might climb. There are several windows in the laundry room where bits of flesh, internal organs and blood were found in the trap of the washbasin drain.

The bone test was made in an effort to account for the missing and the victim, the only parts of her body which have not been recovered.

Eleven Get Lie-Detector Tests
Eleven persons held for questioning have been given lie-detector tests so far, police said, and seven of them released. Verburgh has not undergone a test, they said.

Verburgh, a mild-mannered man who building tenants said "wouldn't harm a fly" was seized for questioning yesterday after police said they found bits of human flesh, internal organs and blood in a laundry tub drain in the building basement. His wife was taken with him to detective headquarters.

Police, who are engaged in the city's greatest manhunt, detained Smet early today. Police Sgt. Jack Hanrahan described Smet as an "inseparable pal of Verburgh, but Smet's wife denied the two were more than casual acquaintances.

Suzanne, golden-haired daughter of James Degnan, Chicago OPA executive, was snatched from her bed Monday morning by an abductor who left a $20,000 ransom note, killed her, dismembered her body and dumped the parts into nearby sewers.

The coroner's office said there also were indications she had been sexually mistreated.

Verburgh denied any knowledge of the girl's abduction, asserting he was asleep in his apartment. He contended the basement windows were unlocked and he and Smet might have broken in to do the grisly dissection job.

At Miami, Fla., the Daily News quoted Dr. and Mrs. Frank D. Case, owners of the apartment building at 3901-3 Winthrop avenue where Verburgh is employed, as saying that a key to the basement had been furnished to an ash disposal agency.

Verburgh, a native of Belgium, has been a Chicago janitor for seventeen years.

A brief inquest today was continued to January 30 by Police Capt. John L. Sullivan, said all law enforcement agencies in the case wanted three weeks more for investigation.

In a radio appeal earlier today, Storms asked an unidentified man and woman to communicate with him "if they have any connection with the case." He said the two were observed in the vicinity of the Degnan home about the time of the kidnapping. The woman was carrying "a bundle in both arms" he said and climbed into a parked automobile. A man was in the driver's seat.

Funeral services will be Friday in St. Gertrude's Catholic church.

In Baltimore, the Maryland OPA system, which Degnan helped to establish, set up a "reminiscence fund" for him and arranged for twenty-five masses for his 6-year-old daughter.

Degnan's wife and a 10-year-old daughter, Elizabeth, also survive.

Max Spear Named To National Body Of Jewish Group

Rabbi Aaron H. Lefkowitz also Is Elected to National Council

Max Spear, 901 Braddock road, Cumberland jeweler, has been re-elected to the national council of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee.

Spear, who has served on the council for the past several years, was re-elected to it at the thirty-first annual meeting held in New York in December. Rabbi Aaron H. Lefkowitz, formerly of B'er Chayim temple, this city, and now of Temple Beth Miriam, Long Branch, N. J., also was elected to the national council.

The council is composed of men and women in communities throughout the United States and Canada who have shown an interest in the activities and problems of the joint distribution committee.

Looks to Council
The committee looks to members of the council for advice and leadership in local communities as well as assistance in meeting the needs of Jews overseas.

Members of the council receive reports and other literature from the committee to keep them abreast of the program.

First-hand reports on the immediate needs of Europe's surviving Jews were presented at the annual meeting in December by three men recently arrived from Europe.

They were Dr. Joseph J. Schwartz, chairman of the European council of the JDC; Rabbi Judah Nadich, chief Jewish chaplain in the European theater of operations and former special adviser to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower; and Edward M. N. Warburg, newly-elected chairman of the committee.

$58,350,000 Is Needed
At the meeting, the sum of $58,350,000 was estimated as necessary for the JDC to meet the needs of distressed Jews overseas. The JDC spent almost $28,000,000 in relief and rehabilitation activities all over the world in 1945.

In the United States, the JDC receives its funds from the campaign collections of the United Jewish Appeal.

Demonstrators Meet Patterson
Col. Charles A. Mahoney, provost marshal of the United States Army Service Command, stopped what he called a "hostile demonstration" that greeted Secretary of War Patterson upon his arrival in Yokohama.

Mahoney said Patterson was met by cries of "We want to go home." He said he told the demonstrators they were insulting a man who was a soldier before you were born.

A mimeographed paper distributed among GIs quoted Mahoney as saying, "If you want lace panties, I'll get them for you."

Patterson is on an inspection tour. Servicemen at several points called for his dismissal after men in Gurney and the Philippines alleged he had shown a lack of knowledge of the demobilization program in answering questions of reporters.

Half way across the Pacific, 15,000 men in khaki met at Hickam field, Honolulu yesterday. They heard Master Sgt. Joe Nansen, Brooklyn, assail the demobilization program and demand action from Congress.

Similar indignation meetings were reported in Korea, with various groups filing messages to congressmen.

At Batangas, near Manila, soldiers planned to lay complaints before a Senate subcommittee studying demobilization and surplus problems. Sgt. Emil Mazey, Detroit, said he was ready to tell the committee that retention of no more than a normal peacetime garrison was justified.

How do they do it?

COULD you produce one-third more crops with 10% less manpower? The farmers of America did it during the last full year of the war.

How? Partly by working themselves and their machines longer, harder. Partly by assisting hired help with wired help.

Electricity has taken over more and more farm chores. It pumps water, grinds feed, cures hay, fills silos. It steps up milk and egg and pork production. It eases farm house-work, too.

Cheap, dependable electricity has done more than any other force to make farming efficient and farm life comfortable.

Who electrified the farms? Rural electric service didn't happen overnight. It started more than 25 years ago—with America's business-managed electric companies. These companies did the pioneering—the pick-and-shovel work.

The advantages of electricity on the farm were many. The problem was to get it to the farmer. Distance and weather called for new methods and materials. New farm machines suitable for electric drive had to be developed.

Each problem was licked in turn by American initiative and ingenuity. Service grew steadily better and cheaper. Farm by farm, area by area, the web of wire expanded.

What of tomorrow? Today, business-managed electric companies serve 1,850,000 farms (about two-thirds of all electrified farms) and more than 4,000,000 other rural customers outside of incorporated towns. That's real progress.

But the job isn't done. Right now, as fast as men and materials become available, these same companies are extending reliable, low-priced electric service to more than 1,000,000 additional farm and rural non-farm customers. These companies are investing $290,000,000 for construction alone.

This program—long planned—is under way right now.

How do they do it?

COULD you produce one-third more crops with 10% less manpower? The farmers of America did it during the last full year of the war.

How? Partly by working themselves and their machines longer, harder. Partly by assisting hired help with wired help.

Cheap, dependable electricity has done more than any other force to make farming efficient and farm life comfortable.

Mountaineers Top Long Island Five In Garden, 59-51

18,000 See West Virginia Cagers Score Eighth Straight Victory

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—West Virginia's unbeaten Mountaineers won their eighth straight game tonight by beating Long Island University, 59 to 51, in the first game of a college basketball doubleheader at Madison Square Garden before more than 18,000.

The Mountaineers, except for the opening minutes, always held the upper hand, but were threatened late in the game when LIU spurred. Trailing by seventeen points at 54-37, Long Island forced in ten straight points on baskets by Edmore Collins and Jackie Goldsmith to throw a scare into the visitors. However, the rally faded as Bob Carroll and Leland Byrd pulled West Virginia out of danger.

Long Island took a brief lead at the start, but the Mountaineers soon tied at 7-7, then went ahead to stay on Carroll's jump shot from 20 feet out. From there the visitors, paced by Carroll and Byrd, rolled up a 28-20 halftime edge.

Tom Lavette joined Carroll and Byrd in dunking West Virginia baskets in the second half and the Mountaineers soon took what appeared a commanding lead, first at 51-35, then at 54-37, before the Blackbirds rallied. Fourteen LIU players were used in a vain effort to halt the Mountaineers.

Carroll, with eighteen points and Byrd, with sixteen, were the visitors' high scorers. Collins threw in nineteen points for LIU on nine baskets and one free throw. The lineup:

Elk Garden High Extends Streak, Defeats Romney

Murphy and Mason Star as Kalbaugh's Quint Scores 40-16 Win

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 9 (AP)—Open dealing in financial help to athletes under strict faculty control was proposed by two college presidents today to keep the colossus of postwar sports within bounds.

Neither Dr. John A. Hannah, of Michigan State College nor Dr. T. J. Davies, of Colorado College, found any inherent harm in athletic scholarships in speeches made to the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

"I would not require that athletes be eligible only to the same grants as are non-athletes," Dr. Hannah said.

He would require that all grants, regardless of nature, be handled by the same faculty group which handles similar grants to non-athletes, and that records of these be open to the N.C.A.A. or any accrediting association.

Dr. Davies said that grants to athletes either openly or subrosa were inevitable. He outlined four requirements of the scholarship program at Colorado College which he said provided a sound alignment of athletics and academic work.

These are:

1. A scholarship nominee must meet regular entrance requirements of the institution.
2. He must continue to meet academic requirements each year.
3. His failure to compete in athletics, either because of injury or academic reasons, must not terminate the scholarship.
4. He must not be paid more than value received on any job given him by the institution.

"I do not know as it is my business," Dr. Hannah said, "if a university wants to use university funds, or funds coming to it from another source, to pay the fees and tuition for students who are athletes, or members of the band, or student journalists, or music students, or debaters, or members of the agricultural judging teams, or just outstanding students."

"I want to be assured that all of the representatives of all the colleges and universities playing on xxx teams were actually students within my definition. I think there would be greater satisfaction among us than there is."

Greatest Money Winning Golfer Seeks Crown Third Year in Row

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 9 (AP)—Led by defending champion Byron Nelson, greatest money winning golfer in history, a stout tournament field tees off here tomorrow in the fifteenth annual San Francisco open.

The 72-hole event, at the Olympic Club's picturesque Lake side course is the richest of the P. G. A. winter tourneys. Victory bonds totaling $15,000 will be distributed to twenty winners.

Nelson, who pocketed something like $66,000 in bonds last year and bagged first prize in the $13,333 Los Angeles open, concluded this week, will be trying for his third successive San Francisco open victory.

Among them, expected practically to match shot for shot, are Ben Hogan, Hershey, Pa., Sam Snead, Hot Springs, Va., Harold G. Hoge, Stanford, Me., and Jim Demaret, Houston, Demaret, colorful Texan just out of the navy, finished second to Nelson in the recent Fort Worth, Tex., open and tied for third in Los Angeles.

This quartet embraces the chief challengers in any tournament in which Nelson is the logical favorite. Behind them will be such shot-makers as Craig Wood, United States open champion, not playing up to his past form; Lawson Little, ex-national open kingpin on a comeback after navy service; E. J. "Dutch" Harrison, Little Rock, Ark. Vic Ghezzi, ex-PGA titleholder also just out of service; Sam Byrd, Detroit, and the national amateur champion, Marvin "Bud" Ward, of Spokane, Wash.

Mountaineers Top Long Island Five In Garden, 59-51

18,000 See West Virginia Cagers Score Eighth Straight Victory

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—West Virginia's unbeaten Mountaineers won their eighth straight game tonight by beating Long Island University, 59 to 51, in the first game of a college basketball doubleheader at Madison Square Garden before more than 18,000.

The Mountaineers, except for the opening minutes, always held the upper hand, but were threatened late in the game when LIU spurred. Trailing by seventeen points at 54-37, Long Island tossed in ten straight points on baskets by Elmore Collins and Jackie Goldsmith to throw a scare into the visitors. However, the rally faded as Bob Carroll and Leland Byrd pulled West Virginia out of danger.

Long Island took a brief lead at the start, but the Mountaineers soon tied at 7-7, then went ahead to stay on Carroll's jump shot from 20 feet out. From there the visitors, paced by Carroll and Byrd, rolled up a 28-20 halftime edge.

Tom Lavette joined Carroll and Byrd in dunking West Virginia baskets in the second half and the Mountaineers soon took what appeared a commanding lead, first at 51-35, then at 54-37, before the Blackbirds rallied. Fourteen LIU players were used in a vain effort to halt the Mountaineers.

Carroll, with eighteen points and Byrd, with sixteen, were the visitors' high scorers. Collins threw in nineteen points for LIU on nine baskets and one free throw. The lineup:

There is many a pitfall from the first to the seventy-second holes, and Nelson's rivals are both numerous and capable. Among them, expected practically to match shot for shot, are Ben Hogan, Hershey, Pa., Sam Snead, Hot Springs, Va., Harold McSpaden, Sanford, Me., and Jim Demaret, Houston, Demaret, colorful Texan just out of the navy, finished second to Nelson in the recent Fort Worth, Tex., open and tied for third in Los Angeles.

This quartet embraces the chief challengers in any tournament in which Nelson is the logical favorite. Behind them will be such shot-makers as Craig Wood, United States open champion, not playing up to his past form; Lawson Little, ex-national open kingly on a comeback after navy service; E. J. "Dutch" Harrison, Little Rock, Ark., Vic Ghezzi, ex-PGA titleholder also just out of service; Sam Byrd, Detroit, and the national amateur champion, Marvin "Bud" Ward, of Spokane, Wash.

Football Coaches Propose Seven Rules Changes

Revisions Are Designed To Speed Up Play; 100 Suggestions Offered

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 9.—Seven minor football rule changes designed to speed up play have been selected by the advisory committee on rules of the American Football Coaches' Association from a record list of more than 100 suggestions.

No recommendations for major rule revisions were made. The selected changes will be considered for adoption by the N.C.A.A. Football Rules Committee in a four-day session starting Thursday.

Lou Little, Columbia university head football coach, said the recommendations were:

1. More liberal use of the hands or forearms on offense.
2. Penalize a team for an illegal forward pass at the spot from which pass was thrown.
3. Penalize a team fifteen yards for a foul on a kicked ball, instead of loss of the ball.
4. One additional charged time-out period each half.
5. Permit a backfield player to line up immediately behind the center instead of one yard back.
6. To permit an official to acknowledge a substitution by the wave of a hand instead of requiring the new player to report formally.
7. To stop the clock only for the actual period required for making a substitution, not a full two minutes.

Revisions Are Designed To Speed Up Play; 100 Suggestions Offered

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Seven minor football rule changes designed to speed up play have been selected by the advisory committee on rules of the American Football Coaches Association from a record list of more than 100 suggestions.

No recommendations for major rule revisions were made.

The selected changes will be considered for adoption by the N.C.A.A. Football Rules Committee in a four-day session starting Thursday.

Lou Little, Columbia university head football coach, said the recommendations were:

1. More liberal use of the hands or forearms on offense.
2. Penalize a team for an illegal forward pass at the spot from which pass was thrown.
3. Penalize a team fifteen yards for a foul on a kicked ball, instead of loss of the ball.
4. One additional charged time-out period each half.
5. Permit a player to line up immediately behind the center instead of one yard back.
6. To permit an official to acknowledge a substitution by the wave of a hand instead of requiring the new player to report formally.
7. To stop the clock only for the actual period required for making a substitution, not a full two minutes.

Radcliffe Will Appear on Town Meeting Tonight

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP) — America's Town meeting, after a couple weeks away from New York, will be back at its regular stand on ABC at 8:30 Thursday night to turn its debating attention to "Should Congress approve the proposed loan to Britain?"

Argument will be carried forward by Philip Reed, business executive, and Sen. George L. Radcliffe, of Maryland, in the affirmative, and Sen. C. Wayland Brooks, of Illinois, and Merrill Stanley Rukeyser, financial writer, in the negative.

All sorts of notices were sent out that Frank Sinatra would be guesting with Dinah Shore on NBC at 8:30. Well, he won't and Groucho Marx will be back in the visitor's spot again. Sinatra's appearance has been postponed to "the near future," quote an announcement thereon.

Last of the series on Raising a Husband (the radio way) in quiz form will be available, MBS says, at 8, the program to take its place still to be determined.

Curtain Time of ABC at 10 will do a newspaper drama, "Maguire of the Gazette," Maguire's first name, by the way is Alice.

Ginny Simms is to do the singing with Andre Kostelanetz music of CBS at 9, while Virginia Mayo of the movies is to drop around for the Rudy Vallee Variete on NBC at 10:30.

With Dr. Frank Black conducting and Samuel Chotzinoff narrating, commenting, Story of Music of NBC at 11:30 will provide a demonstration of seven dance forms.

Radcliffe Will Appear on Town Meeting Tonight

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (P) — America's Town meeting, after a couple weeks away from New York, will be back at its regular stand on ABC at 8:30 Thursday night to turn its debating attention to "should Congress approve the proposed loan to Britain?"

Argument will be carried forward by Philip Reed, business executive, and Sen. George L. Radcliffe, of Maryland, in the affirmative, and Sen. C. Wayland Brooks, of Illinois, and Merryll Stanley Ruker, financial writer, in the negative.

All sorts of notice were sent out that Frank Sinatra would be guesting with Dinah Shore on NBC at 8:30. Well, he won't and Groucho Marx will be back in the visitor's spot again. Sinatra's appearance has been postponed to "the near future," to quote an announcement thereon.

Last of the series on Raising a Husband (the radio way) in quiz form will be available, MBS says, at 8, the program to take its place still to be determined.

Curtain Time ABC at 10 will do a newspaper drama, "Maguire of the Gazette," Maguire's first name, by the way, is Alice.

Ginny Simms is to do the singing with Andre Kostelanetz music of CBS at 9, while Virginia Mayo of the movies is to drop around for the Rudy Vallee Variete on NBC at 10:30.

With Dr. Frank Black conducting and Samuel Chotzinoff narrating-commentating, Story of Music of NBC at 11:30 will provide a demonstration of seven dance forms.

2 Men Held in Death of Charles E. Dornon

Police Chief of Piedmont Dies after Being Beaten, Vernon E. Rankin Says

Aldin Fazenbaker and Russel H. Michael Surrender to Authorities in Westernport but Refuse to Waive Extradition to West Virginia and Are Placed in Allegany County Jail Early Today

By A. TRAGO BRUST AND JAMES B. CRAIG

Two twenty-three-year-old ex-servicemen from Westernport surrendered to authorities of two states at Westernport early this morning but refused extradition to West Virginia to face murder charges filed against them by Vernon E. Rankin, prosecuting attorney of Mineral county, W. Va., in the death of Charles E. Dornon, 72, chief of police at Piedmont, W. Va., for the better part of the last thirty-three years.

Rankin said Dornon was beaten by the two men about 10 o'clock as he attempted to arrest them for drunken and disorderly conduct after they allegedly created a disturbance in the Rendezvous, a Piedmont cafe. The chief of police was dead on arrival at Potomac Valley hospital, Keyser, W. Va.

The warrants obtained by Rankin from Justice of the Peace George E. Boyles, Piedmont, named the men accused of murder as Aldin Fazenbaker, a former soldier, and Russel H. Michael, an ex-marine.

Attempted to Make Arrest
Dornon was attempting to arrest the men after they became disorderly in the Rendezvous, operated by "Jake" Wilson. Wilson wanted the men put out, according to Mayor Harold Fredrick.

Authorities said Dornon went into the cafe to arrest the men and that the scuffle took place in a passageway beside the building. After the fracas the men fled into Maryland.

Moran Surrenders Men
Edward Moran, said by police to be a relative of Michael, followed him and Fazenbaker across the Potomac river bridge into Maryland and then went to Maryland and West Virginia to be extradited, promised to bring them to surrender. Police gave him until 2 a. m. today to keep his promise, with the alternative that they would go after the two men and bring them in if he failed.

Moran, who told authorities he had retained Edward J. Ryan, Frostburg and Cumberland attorney, to represent Fazenbaker and Michael, brought the men to the Westernport council chamber shortly before 1 o'clock this morning.

When they refused to be extradited to West Virginia, Terrence J. Boyle, Allegany county investigator, ordered them brought to the Allegany county jail in Cumberland until extradition can be arranged. They arrived at the jail a short time later.

Rankin said that one of the men was armed when the fracas took place with Dornon and that the other man took Dornon's 38-caliber police special revolver from him as well as his billy club.

Because both men were believed to be armed, two state police from West Virginia, bolstered by six Maryland state troopers and Westernport policemen, hurried to the scene, well-armed in anticipation of a possible gun battle.

Moran Is Mediator
However, Moran, apparently attempting to prevent bloodshed, stepped in as mediator, and was successful in bringing both men to authorities peacefully.

Fight Starts in Street
Mayor Fredrick said that after Dornon talked with one of the war veterans in the cafe about creating a disturbance, he took one of them out to the street, and was followed by the other. After reaching the street, they started to fight the chief, Fredrick said, and he pulled his pistol.

Authorities said later that the trio in some way entered a passageway or alley between the Rendezvous and another building where the scuffle took place.

They added that Michael came out carrying Dornon's pistol. Fazenbaker and Dornon grappled over the night stick, they added.

As the scuffle ended, Fazenbaker and Michael fled, Dornon reeled out of the passageway and collapsed against an automobile parked at the curb.

Police said that while there were a lot of witnesses to the fight, no one tried to help because of the pistol that was brought into sight.

Dr. Thomas Bess, Keyser, said at the Potomac Valley hospital last night that an autopsy "probably" will be held this morning to determine the cause of Dornon's death. He said he was dead on arrival at the hospital about 10:15 p. m.

Fazenbaker, described as short and stocky and weighing about 220 pounds, was discharged from the army in September after serving overseas with the army.

Michael, a marine, also was a veteran of overseas service.

Flintstone School Teacher Is Found Dead in Bedroom

Dr. Corson Says Miss Marian Grace Eyler, 40, Died on Saturday

Miss Marian Grace Eyler, 40, 309 Bedford street, an instructor at Flintstone high school since 1928, was found dead in a seldom used attic bedroom of her home last night and Dr. Linne H. Corson, deputy county medical examiner, said she had been dead since Saturday afternoon. He said a heart attack was the cause of death.

The body of Miss Eyler was found by two of her sisters, Mrs. Leo Leasure, who resides next door, and Miss Beulah Eyler, who lives at the 309 address.

Dr. Corson said that Miss Eyler had not been well and had been under a doctor's care for some time. She was planning a trip to Florida, according to Dr. Corson, who added that members of the family thought she had departed after they had not seen her since Saturday morning.

Mrs. Leasure, who last talked with Miss Eyler about 10:30 a. m., Saturday, and Miss Beulah Eyler went to the little bedroom last night about 8:30 o'clock and found the body.

Born at Lonaconing, Miss Eyler was a daughter of Mrs. Lucy Eyler, Cumberland, and the late George D. Eyler. She was graduated from Allegany high school, received her bachelor's degree at Susquehanna university, Selinsgrove, Pa., and her master's at the University of Maryland. She was an instructor in mathematics and history at Flintstone high school.

Surviving besides her mother are two sisters, Mrs. Leasure and Miss Beulah Eyler, and two brothers, Charles P. Eyler, Bedford road, and George Eyler, Bedford street.

The body is at the Knight funeral home.

Lowndes Is Re-elected Second National Head
The board of directors of the Second National Bank today re-elected Tasker G. Lowndes president at the annual meeting of the board.

Lowndes has served as president of the bank continuously since first being elected in 1921.

Other officers re-elected are Joseph H. Naughton, vice president; John H. Mosser, cashier; Charles E. Shaw, assistant cashier; Ralph Wilford, trust officer, and Harry W. Matthews, auditor.

Bridge To Be Closed
Ralph R. Rizer, city engineer, said yesterday that the temporary foot bridge at Valley street will be closed tomorrow for approximately ten days.

Rizer explained that repairs to the bridge, damaged in an explosion last February, necessitate the temporary closing of the foot bridge, which will be moved on one side while the repairs are being made.

Three Births Reported
Mr. and Mrs. William M. George, Valley road, announced the birth of a daughter in Allegany hospital yesterday morning.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Stein, Corriganville, in Allegany hospital yesterday afternoon at 5:55 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville McDonald, 301 Arch street, announced the birth of a daughter in Memorial hospital last evening at 7:45 o'clock.

First Bazooka Made Is in Display Arranged by Army Recruiters Here

The first bazooka ever made, a weapon that was developed by three men working in the greatest secret at the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory, according to members of the staff of the local army recruiting station, is among the war trophies on display this week in a window of Schwarzenbach's store, Baltimore street.

The exhibit was arranged by the recruiting station.

While the bazooka on display is heavier than present models, development of the weapon made history, and the names of the three men who developed it have been scratched on the metal. Sgt. Charles E. Vrooman, one of the recruiters, said.

Among the many war stories veterans of fighting in Europe have brought back is one about the bazooka and the reaction of a German officer when he saw it fired for the first time.

The officer, after seeing the bazooka knock off a tree, surrendered his men with the remark that "when the Yanks start firing 106s from the shoulder, it's time to quit."

Naga Pipe Exhibited
Several of the men at the recruiting station seem to be of the opinion that the particular bazooka on display is the outstanding item in the exhibit they prepared, but there are a number of other trophies and articles that are of special interest.

There is a Naga pipe, brought back from Burma. The story behind that is that the carver must have been at least one person before being permitted to carve it. There is also a Burmese dah with a slightly curved two and one-half inch blade that was used by Burmese guerrilla groups and American groups of scouts operating as guerrilla forces.

Another prize is a Jap battleflag, capture of which was considered a military achievement because of the information it contained. The history of the organization carrying the flag is written on it.

Extensive Surveys Are Being Made For Clay Seams

Valuable Deposits May Be Present in Castleman River Basin in Garrett

The possibility that extensive deposits of valuable fire and pottery clay may be present in the Castleman river basin in Garrett county, which will ultimately result in new industry in this region was revealed yesterday when it was learned that both the Federal and State Geological Survey services are conducting extensive surveys in this area.

At the present time, the head of the State Geological Survey, first became interested in the possibility of valuable clay deposits in this area and later interested the federal geological branch.

As a result, Karl M. Waage, Philadelphia geologist, was sent here to make a study and he is now carrying on the work from his headquarters in Frostburg. Waage has been engaged in the work for several months and yesterday received permission from District Forester William H. Johnson to conduct experiments in the Savage River State Forest area.

Waage, who plans to have his work completed by June, said yesterday that it is too early to make any definite predictions but he indicated that clay deposits in this area are extensive and eventually "may mean considerable" to future industrial development.

At the present time, the geologist is engaged in making a map, scale 1-2 inches to the mile, covering the area being investigated. Aerial photographs are being used to facilitate the work.

Clay deposits, Waage explained, generally follow coal seams and is his mission to determine how many clay seams there are and what grade of clay it is. There are two principle types of clay, high grade, or fire brick clay, and low grade, or pottery clay. From all indications both are present in the Castleman river area, he said.

Presence of Seams Sought
Waage said that clay seams in this area may be a continuation

Bus Drivers, Company Are Closer Together, Morrison Reports

James H. Morrison, president of Local 1110, Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees of America, AFL, said last night that his union of city bus drivers and mechanics and the Potomac Edison Company were "closer together" in their wage dispute after a six-hour meeting arranged by James A. Holden, federal conciliator.

While no agreement was reached in the dispute, Morrison said the company made a better offer than a previous proposal of five cents an hour, but he did not make public the new proposal.

Morrison said he has called a special meeting of the union members for 1 a. m. Friday at which he will speak to members of the company at yesterday's meeting will be presented to them. The meeting was called for that hour, he said, so that all members of the union could attend without interfering with their work hours.

The next meeting with the company, regardless of action of the membership on Friday, is scheduled for 10:30 a. m. Monday, Morrison said.

Transportation Of Future Will Be "Stepped Up"

Transportation in the near future will be drastically stepped up, Leo H. Leary, speaking before members of the Tri-State Traffic Club at their dinner meeting last evening at the All Ghana Country Club, said.

Mentioning a few of the items on the passenger end of railroads, Leary told of plans being developed to eliminate the standard section Pullman cars with their upper and lower berths so that passengers would all have the equivalent of a lower berth. Combinations of day-time coaches with night time sleepers could enjoy the comforts of a night's sleep with the moderate price of day coach accommodations are also to be inaugurated.

Better Equipment Expected
Passenger cars, built on a cradle design to ride more comfortably, including greatly improved designs of dining coaches can also be looked for, Leary said. Dining cars of the future may have all electric kitchens. Already dome type observation cars are on order and the local Baltimore and Ohio will be one of the first eastern railroads to use them.

Faced with the competition of the private motor car, airplanes and cars, set up so that passengers could enjoy the comforts of a night's sleep with the moderate price of day coach accommodations are also to be inaugurated.

Radio Chairman Appointed
Arrangements for handling coin collections in Mt. Savage and Flintstone will be announced within a few days, Geppert said.

Mrs. Aurelia Becker, of Station WTBO, was named chairman of radio publicity for the campaign at last night's meeting. Other members of the March of Dimes committee are Miss Henrietta Schwarzenbach, president, and Mrs. Hume O. Annan, executive secretary of the Allegany County League for Crippled Children.

Representatives of local newspapers who will handle newspaper publicity are J. William Hunt, editor of the Sunday Times; T. Donald Shires of the Cumberland Evening Times, and Mary Louise Buzzeil of the Cumberland News.

Held For Non-Support
Harold Bruce Sencindiver, Sr., shade's lane, is being held in the city jail for Berkeley county, W. Va., authorities.

He was arrested last evening at 7:50 o'clock by Detective Edwin R. Liliya on authority of a warrant from Berkeley county charging non-support of his two children, police said.

Commissioners To Start Road Projects Soon

Satisfactory Conference Is Held in Baltimore with Roads Commission

Simeon W. Green, chairman of the board of county commissioners, last night expressed satisfaction over the results of a meeting yesterday in Baltimore of county officials and members of the state roads commission.

Green and Commissioners James Holmes and C. N. Wilkinson, County Engineer John H. Carscaden, Horace P. Whitworth, board attorney, and James Stevenson, clerk, made the trip to Baltimore yesterday to meet the members of the roads commission at 11 a. m.

The commissioners learned that county gasoline revenue this year for the road system will be approximately $97,000, which represents an increase over last year.

The commissioners have approved a three-year postwar road and bridge project and yesterday it was agreed that work should start immediately in preparing for the first two projects for this year, namely, extensive work on the Mill Run road, near Lonaconing, and the Vooke road, which goes to Winchester bridge.

The county will provide approximately $44,000 toward these two projects which will cost in the neighborhood of $70,000. Federal and state matching funds will provide the remainder, Green said that the roads commission indicated that it will advertise for bids at once.

The commissioners inquired why the roads in this locality had not been "striped" as is customary and the members of the commission replied that they have been unable to obtain yellow paint to do the work. The roads commission is hopeful that this lack of supplies will be remedied soon and that this work will be resumed.

The conference with the commission was arranged by Carscaden who said he believed such a meeting was necessary to clarify plans that had already been mapped out by himself and presented to the commission.

Carscaden's plans list the projects in order of urgency with some road work placed on a top priority basis while other proposed projects are placed second or third under the three-year construction program.

Affair Will Be Held at Southern Hotel; Ticket Chairman Named

The annual March of Dimes ball will be held Wednesday, January 30, at the Southern hotel from 9 p. m. until 1 a. m. William H. Geppert, chairman of the March of Dimes campaign in Allegany county this year, announced last night.

Geppert stated that Frank Vandegriff and Harry Little, owners of the Southern hotel, have donated the use of the dance floor and the services of Jay Van's orchestra for the affair.

Other arrangements for the dance were made at a meeting of the March of Dimes committee at 8 p. m. yesterday at the headquarters of the Allegany County League for Crippled Children.

Ticket Chairman Named
Miss Ruth Frank, educational director of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, was appointed chairman of the ticket committee.

Price of tickets for the dance will be seventy-five cents per person, plus tax. The tickets will go on sale at the Crippled Children League headquarters, City Hall plaza, next week. Other places where tickets will be sold will be announced later.

Mrs. W. O. McLane, Frostburg, was named chairman of the March of Dimes campaign for Frostburg and Eckhart. Mrs. McLane has informed Geppert that Frostburg Lodge No. 470, B. O. E. Ls., will handle the distribution of coin containers for contributions to the drive in both communities.

The ladies auxiliary of James P. Low Post No. 92, American Legion, will distribute coin containers in Lonaconing, according to Mrs. Christine Spiker, who has been named chairman of the Lonaconing campaign.

P. J. O'Brien, Luke, who has been appointed chairman of the Tri-State campaign, will announce the details of the campaign in that section within a few days, Geppert said.

Ross Shaw, Oldtown, chairman of the March of Dimes campaign in the Oldtown district, will handle the distribution of coin containers there.

Radio Chairman Appointed
Arrangements for handling coin collections in Mt. Savage and Flintstone will be announced within a few days, Geppert said.

Mrs. Aurelia Becker, of Station WTBO, was named chairman of radio publicity for the campaign at last night's meeting. Reporter Is Curious

The reporter thought this was interesting what with the store most women put by flowers and any unusual things they do, and thought he would write a paragraph about it. Then another lady who also took an interest in the jasmine remarked "Why, there's nothing unusual about jasmine budding in January. Sometimes it buds as early as December."

Another lady who also took an interest in the jasmine declared, "It the first place it's not jasmine. It's forsythia. What color were the buds? Yellow? I thought so. Bell-shaped? Well, even if the buds are 'sorta star-shaped' it's still forsythia. But she said Mary Walsh. She ought to know. She lived here and was born in Mr. Rizer's office."

That last seemed like good sense to the reporter so he went to see Miss Walsh about the jasmine or the forsythia, as the case might be. It seemed logical that if Miss Walsh had lived at the board of education and been born in Rizer's office that her opinion should carry some weight.

"Well, I WAS born there but I can't say that I remember a great deal about that garden," the genial librarian said. "You see, I was only 2 years old when I left. However, my first thought would be that it's forsythia. Does it smell, by the way?"

Told that the sprig on Miss Adams' desk had a very pleasing fragrance like some of the flowers encountered by soldiers in the Indies and Southern Philippines, Miss Walsh said "Well, it's probably really jasmine then, because jasmine has a pleasant odor and forsythia doesn't. However, let us look."

The reporter thought Miss Walsh meant look at the bush and started to put on his hat but the librarian started pulling at the leaves, exclaiming from the heavily-laden shelves, "This is Bailey," Miss Walsh said. "He is very good."

Books Are Consulted
Bailey must be a great scholar because his writings are most ponderous and in small type. He called it "jasminum nudiflorum" and said it was an Arabic name. He also said it was a native of the East Indies but became naturalized in the south of Europe. However, he was very indignant about the smell, and-out statement about the smell or when it was likely to break out in buds. His works really didn't tell us much although they were very scholarly, of course.

The next book was more pleasant with colored pictures and big type. The lady who wrote it, Louise Beebe Wilder and her wife, (Continued on Page 10, Col. 5)

Rec. Club Pictures Planned Tomorrow

Pictures will be taken at Central YMCA tomorrow evening of Rec club activities, including bowling and group singing, and a group picture of the Rec club council, for use in the Seventeen magazine, Robert L. Sisson, general YMCA secretary, said last night.

Additional pictures will be taken Monday evening during the Rec club swimming period, as well as photographs of pingpong games and Rec members in the cafeteria, Sisson said. He added that pictures have already been taken of Rec club dances.

Stanley Bishop and Marion Warden, members of the club council, are making arrangements for the pictures.

At a meeting of the council at the "Y" yesterday evening, with Fred Partleton presiding, a schedule was worked out for members of the council to handle checking of costs at the Rec club dance tomorrow evening. The schedule is as follows:

Marion Warden and Stanley Bishop, 7:30-8:30 p. m.; Doris Thrasher and Shirley Sapp, 8:30-9:30 p. m.; Katherine Shade and Patti Bowie, 9:30-10:30 p. m.; Fred Partleton and Jean Watt, 10:11 p. m.; and Delores Chase and Dick Groves, 11 p. m.-12 midnight.

Sisson said the schedule has been arranged for tomorrow evening only. If the new plan of checking is successful, similar schedules will be worked out for future Rec club dances. Stanley Bishop is in charge of tomorrow's checking program.

Discharged Soldier Evokes Civil Relief Act To Keep from Moving

A discharged soldier with two years of service yesterday invoked the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief act to prevent his being ousted from his home at 137 Maple street where he and his family have resided for the last three years.

The petition was docketed in circuit court by William Carscaden representing Robert Wilson Long and Pearl G. Long, his wife. The petition is brought against Ann Wagner, near Springfield, W. Va., the owner of the property, and Sheriff David M. Steele who now holds a writ of restitution which the petitioners aver will be served shortly.

The Longs have asked the court to issue a restraining order that would prevent Sheriff Steele from serving the writ.

According to Carscaden's petition, the defendant gave the Longs notice to vacate the premises August 21, 1945, although the defendant "knew that at that time that the husband was in active service."

On October 1, the defendant started eviction proceedings according to the petition, in trial magistrate's court and on October 8 a judgment was handed down by the court for restitution of the property at 137 Maple street.

Having evoked the aid of the Civil Relief act, the petitioners next cited that the defendant has a home near Springfield and that she does not have any immediate and compelling necessity for the possession of the property. Therefore, the petition declares, her proposed move is contrary to the provisions of Section 6, Part 138, of the rental areas regulations of the OPA.

The petition states that the complainants have lived in the Maple street dwelling for a long period of time and are entitled to the possession of the property. The Longs also state that they are unable to find another place to live.

"The couple have one child, Pearl G. Long, aged 7. The father was discharged from the service December 8.

Mellott stated he was just entering the south end of the subway, where the curb is about two feet high, when Roberts fell or stepped in front of his slow moving machine. Roberts, who was admitted to Memorial Hospital with possible head injuries and scalp and facial lacerations, was reported in "fair" condition today by attaches.

Mellott was released pending the outcome of Roberts' injuries.

Aldin Fazenbaker and Russell H. Michael Surrender to Authorities in Westernport but Refuse to Waive Extradition to West Virginia and Are Placed in Allegany County Jail Early Today

By A. TRAGO BRUST AND JAMES B. CRAIG

Two twenty-three-year-old ex-servicemen from Westernport surrendered to authorities of two states at Westernport early this morning but refused extradition to West Virginia to face murder charges filed against them by Vernon E. Rankin, prosecuting attorney of Mineral county, W. Va., in the death of Charles E. Dornon, 72, chief of police at Piedmont, W. Va., for the better part of the last thirty-three years.

Rankin said Dornon was beaten by the two men about 10 o'clock as he attempted to arrest them for drunken and disorderly conduct after they allegedly created a disturbance in the Rendezvous, a Piedmont cafe. The chief of police was dead on arrival at Potomac Valley hospital, Keyser, W. Va.

The warrants obtained by Rankin from Justice of the Peace George E. Boyles, Piedmont, named the men accused of murder as Aldin Fazenbaker, a former soldier, and Russell H. Michael, an ex-marine.

Attempted To Make Arrest
Dornon was attempting to arrest the men after they became disorderly in the Rendezvous, operated by "Jake" Wilson. Wilson wanted the men put out, according to Mayor Harold Fredrick.

Authorities said Dornon went into the cafe to arrest the men and that the scuffle took place in a passageway beside the building. After the fracas the men fled into Maryland.

Moran Surrenders Men
Edward Moran, said by police to be a relative of Michael, followed him and Fazenbaker across the Potomac river bridge into Maryland and then went to Maryland and West Virginia authorities and promised to bring them in to surrender. Police gave him until 2 a. m. today to keep his promise, with the alternative that they would go after the two men and bring them in if he failed.

Moran, who told authorities he had retained Edward J. Ryan, Frostburg and Cumberland attorney, to represent Fazenbaker and Michael, brought the men to the Westernport county courthouse shortly before 1 o'clock this morning. When they refused to be extradited to West Virginia, Terrence J. Boyle, Allegany county investigator, ordered them brought to the Allegany county jail in Cumberland until extradition can be arranged. They arrived at the jail a short time later.

Rankin said that one of the men was armed when the fracas took place with Dornon and that the other man took Dornon's 38-caliber police special revolver from him as well as his billy club.

Because both men were believed to be armed, two state police from West Virginia, bolstered by six Maryland state troopers and Westport policemen, hurried to the scene, well-armed in anticipation of a possible gun battle.

Moran, Mediator
However, Moran, apparently attempting to prevent bloodshed, stepped in as mediator, and was successful in bringing both men to authorities peacefully.

Fight Starts in Street
Mayor Fredrick said that after Dornon talked with one of the veterans in the crowd about creating a disturbance, he took one of them out to the street and was followed by the other. After reaching the street, they started to fight the chief, Fredrick said, and he pulled his pistol.

Authorities said later that the trio in some way entered a passageway or alley between the Rendezvous and another building where the scuffle took place.

They added that Michael came out carrying Dornon's pistol. Fazenbaker and Dornon grappled over the night stick they added.

As the scuffle ended and Fazenbaker and Michael fled, Dornon reeled out of the passageway and collapsed against an automobile parked at the curb.

Police said that while there were a lot of witnesses to the fight, no one tried to help because of the pistol that was brought into sight.

Dr. Thomas Best, Keyser, said at the Potomac Valley hospital last night that an autopsy "probably" will be held this morning to determine the cause of Dornon's death. He said he was dead on arrival at the hospital about 10:15 p. m.

Fazenbaker, described as short and stocky and weighing about 220 pounds, was discharged from the army in September after serving overseas with the army.

Michael, a marine, also was a veteran of overseas service.

Flintstone School Teacher Is Found Dead in Bedroom

Dr. Corson Says Miss Marian Grace Eyer, 40, Died on Saturday

Miss Marian Grace Eyer, 40, 309 Bedford street, an instructor at Flintstone high school since 1928, was found dead in a bedroom used as a bedroom of her home last night and Dr. Linne H. Corson, deputy county medical examiner, said she had been dead since Saturday afternoon. He said a heart attack was the cause of death.

The body of Miss Eyer was found by two of her sisters, Mrs. Lee Leasure, who resides next door, and Miss Beulah Eyer, who lives at the 309 address.

Dr. Corson said that Miss Eyer had not been well and had been under a doctor's care for some time. She was planning a trip to Florida, according to Dr. Corson, who added that members of the family thought she had departed after they had not seen her since Saturday morning.

Extensive Surveys Are Being Made For Clay Seams

Valuable Deposits May Be Present in Castleman River Basin in Garrett

The possibility that extensive deposits of valuable fire and pottery clay may be present in the Castleman river basin in Garrett county which will ultimately result in new industry in this region was revealed yesterday when it was learned that both the Federal and State Geological Survey services are conducting extensive surveys in this area.

Dr. Joseph T. Singewald, Jr., head of the State Geological Survey, first became interested in the possibility of valuable clay deposits in the area and later interested the federal geological branch.

As a result, Karl M. Waage, Philadelphia geologist, was sent here to make a study and he is now carrying on the work from his headquarters in Frostburg. Waage has been engaged in the work for several months and yesterday received permission from District Forester William H. Johnson to conduct experiments in the Savage River State Forest area.

Waage, who plans to have his work completed by June, said yesterday that it is too early to make any definite predictions but he indicated that clay deposits in this area are extensive and eventually "may mean considerable" to future industrial development.

At the present time, the geologist is engaged in making a map, scale 1-2 inches to the mile, covering the area being investigated. Aerial photographs are being used to facilitate the work.

Clay deposits, Waage explained, generally follow coal seams and it is his mission to determine how many clay seams there are and what grade of clay it is. There are two principle types of clay, high grade, or fire brick clay, and low grade, or pottery clay. From all indications both are present in the Castleman river area, he said.

Presence of Seams Sought
Waage said that clay seams in this area may be a continuation

Bus Drivers, Company Are Closer Together, Morrison Reports

James H. Morrison, president of Local 1110, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees of America, AFL, said last night that his union of city bus drivers and mechanics and the Potomac Edison Company were "closer together" in their wage dispute after a six-hour meeting arranged by James A. Holden, federal conciliator.

While no agreement was reached in the dispute, Morrison said the company made a better offer than a previous proposal of five cents an hour, but he did not make public the new proposal.

Morrison said he has called a special meeting of the union membership for 1 a. m. Friday at which time the offer made by the company at yesterday's meeting will be presented to them. The meeting was called for that hour, he said, so that all members of the union could attend without interfering with their work hours.

The next meeting with the company, regardless of action of the membership on Friday, is scheduled for 10:30 a. m. Monday, Morrison said.

The annual March of Dimes ball will be held Wednesday, January 30, at the Southern hotel from 9 p. m. until 1 a. m. William H. Geppert, chairman of the March of Dimes campaign in Allegany county this year, announced last night.

Geppert stated that Frank Vandegriff and Harry Little, owners of the Southern hotel, have donated the use of the dance floor and the services of Jay Van's orchestra for the affair.

Other arrangements for the dance were made at a meeting of the March of Dimes committee at 8 p. m. yesterday at the headquarters of the Allegany County League for Crippled Children.

Ticket Chairman Named
Miss Ruth Frank, educational director of Local 1274, Textile Workers Union of America, was appointed chairman of the ticket committee.

Price of tickets for the dance will be seventy-five cents per person, plus tax. The tickets will go on sale at the Crippled Children League headquarters, City Hall plaza, next week. Other places where tickets will be sold will be announced later.

Mrs. W. O. McLane, Frostburg, was named chairman of the March of Dimes campaign for Frostburg and Eckhart. Mrs. McLane has informed Geppert that Frostburg Lodge No. 470, B. P. O. Elks, will handle the distribution of coin containers for contributions to the drive in both communities.

The ladies auxiliary of James P. Love Post No. 92, American Legion, will distribute coin containers at the next meeting, a c. o. d. to Mrs. Christine Spiker, who has been named chairman of the Lonaconing campaign.

P. J. O'Brien, Luke, who has been appointed chairman of the Tri-States area, will announce the details of the campaign in that section within a few days, Geppert said.

Ross Shaw, Oldtown, chairman of the March of Dimes campaign in the Oldtown district, will handle the distribution of coin containers there.

Better Equipment Expected
Passenger cars, built on a cradle design to ride more comfortably, including greatly improved designs of daytime coaches can also be looked for, Ley said. Dining cars of the future may have all electric kitchens. Already dome type observation cars are on order and the local Baltimore and Ohio will be one of the first eastern railroads to use them.

Faced with the competition of the private motor car, airplanes and bus travel, the railroads are working hard to offer the traveling public better transportation.

Not are the railroads going to be left standing at the switches on freight traffic, the speaker added. New designs of freight car equipment, using lighter aluminum, magnesium and plywood construction, saving weight to add to the freight carrying capacity of locomotives, will enable the roads to offer reduced rates as an incentive for heavier loading of freight cars.

Shock absorbing devices to reduce damage to freight while in transit are also being developed. Increases in the installations of "Central Traffic Control", a device that increases the movement of trains and at the same time removes danger.

Commissioners To Start Road Projects Soon

Satisfactory Conference Is Held in Baltimore with Roads Commission

Simeon W. Green, chairman of the board of county commissioners, last night expressed satisfaction over the results of a meeting yesterday in Baltimore of county officials and members of the state roads commission.

Green and Commissioners James Holmes and C. N. Wilkinson, County Engineer John H. Carscaden, Horace P. Whitworth, board attorney, and James Stevenson, clerk, made the trip to Baltimore yesterday to meet the members of the roads commission at 11 a. m.

The commissioners learned that county gasoline revenue this year for the road system will be approximately $97,000, which represents an increase over last year.

The commissioners have approved a three-year postwar road and bridge project and yesterday it was agreed that work should start immediately in preparing for the first two projects for this year, namely, extensive work on the Mill Run road, near Lonaconing, and the Vocke road, which goes to Winchester bridge.

The county will provide approximately $44,000 toward these two projects which will cost in the neighborhood of $70,000. Federal and state matching funds will provide the remainder. Green said that the roads commission indicated that it will advertise for bids at once.

The commissioners inquired why the roads in this locality had not been "striped" as is customary and the members of the commission replied that they have been unable to obtain yellow paint to do the work. The roads commission is hopeful that this lack of supplies will be remedied soon and that this work will be resumed.

The conference with the commission was arranged by Carscaden who said he believed such a meeting was necessary to clarify plans that had already been mapped out by himself and presented to the commission.

Carscaden's plans list the projects in order of urgency with some road work placed on a top priority basis while other proposed projects are placed second or third under the three-year construction program.

By JAMES B. CRAIG

A reporter was all set to write a little squib about the jasmine in the garden of the board of education building blooming unusually early this year when several different points of view presented themselves.

The sprig that started the whole thing was on the desk of Miss Ruby Marie Adams, director of elementary education, originally. Miss Adams said it was jasmine and that it had flowers unusually early.

Miss Winifred Green, primary supervisor, who found the jasmine and picked the sprig in mention then happened in. Miss Green said she had first detected the jasmine by its fragrance and had followed her nose to speak out into the garden where she found the jasmine bush bursting with buds.

Ordinarily, Miss Green said, this particular bush does not bud until early in February. She attributed the early arrival of the buds to the recent warm weather.

Reporter Is Furious
The reporter thought this was interesting what with the store most women put by flowers and any unusual things they do, and thought he would write a paragraph about it. Then another lady who also took an interest in the jasmine remarked why there's nothing unusual about the forsythia. "You see, I was sometimes it buds as early as December."

Another lady who also took an interest in the jasmine declared, "It's the first place its not jasmine. Its forsythia. What color were the buds? Yellow? I thought so. Bell-shaped? Well, even if the buds are sorta spindly, it's still forsythia. But you ask Mary Walsh. She ought to know. She lived here and was born in Mr. Rizer's office."

That last seemed like good sense to the reporter so he went to see Miss Walsh about the jasmine or the forsythia, as the case might be. It seemed logical that if Miss Walsh had lived at the board of education and been born in Rizer's office that her opinion should carry some weight.

"Well, I WAS born there but I can't say that I remember a great deal about that garden," the genial librarian said. "You see, I was only 2 years old when I left. However, my first thought would be that it's forsythia. Does it smell, by the way?"

Told that the sprig on Miss Adams' desk had a very pleasing fragrance like some of the flowers encountered by soldiers in the Indies and Southern Philippines, Miss Walsh said "Well, it's probably really jasmine then, because jasmine has a pleasant odor and forsythia doesn't. However, let us look."

The reporter thought Miss Walsh meant just at the bush and started to put on his hat but the librarian started pulling down heavy volumes from the heavily-laden shelves.

"This is Bailey," Miss Walsh said. "He is very good."

Books Are Consulted
Bailey must be a great scholar because he was writing in the most ponderous and in small type. He called it "Jasminum nudiflorum" and said it was an Arabic name. He also said it was a native of the East Indies but became naturalized in the south of Europe. However, he was very cautious about making any out-and-out statements and said the smell or when it was likely to break out in buds. His works really didn't tell us much although they were very scholarly, of course.

The next book was more pleasant with colored pictures and big type. The lady who wrote it is Louise B. Wilder and her writing is very good.
